Fear Big Death Toll

Jet Slams Apartment

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — Rescue crews searched today for more victims believed buried in charred debris after a Navy fighter jet crashed into an apartment house and exploded, touching off an inferno that spread to two adjoining apartment buildings. The local fire chief said as many as 40 persons may have perished.

Four persons were known dead and at least 17 were injured, with an unknown number of missing, including the plane's pilot. Many residents of the apartments were families of Navy men assigned to the nearby base where the plane was headed when it crashed Wednesday night.

Fire Chief Ernest Servente estimated that 42 to 45 tenants were inside when the jet slammed into the four-story, 27-unit stucco apartment building.

The building exploded in flames and witnesses said they saw only a very few people escape.

Servente said that "it probably will take all day" for firemen, Marines, coroner's officials and rescue squad members to sift through the heap of steaming rubble that remained of the apartments.

Authorities said that in all, more than 200 persons were believed living in the buildings affected by the crash and fire in the San Francisco Bay area community.

"There's no question they're going to be pulling bodies out of there. There's no knowing how many are dead," said city councilman Malcolm Longaker.

Intense heat prevented workers from entering the rubble for several hours after the 8:25 p.m. PST crash. Workers wearing asbestos clothing and firemen protected by a stream of water finally were able to start a search of the smoldering, charred debris.

Military investigators prowled the area in a hunt for pieces of the aircraft.

The building struck by the A7 Corsair was a wooden, four-story, open-courtyard type. One of the adjoining apartment buildings was leveled, another damaged.

Witnesses in the residential area said they heard a "whining" noise just before the crash. Then there was an explosion that sent flames and smoke several hundred feet into the air, they said. James Haverberg, who lives across the street from the building hit by the plane, estimated that 75 persons were inside.

"As soon as it happened ... I was there in about 30 or 40 seconds and some guy helped me crawl in there and get this woman out and by that time it was really getting hot," he said.

"I didn't see anybody else get out. I didn't see anyone leave on their own. The entire thing was too hot. There was no warning at all."

"It felt like an earthquake," said Lupie Perez, who lived in the rear of the four-story building.

"We tried to get out, but the doors were jammed. Someone told us to get out in a hurry and kicked out the door, and we managed to get out," she said.

Eyewitnesses said the plane came in low, heading in a westerly direction, clipped one building and then plowed full force into the other.

Local authorities, aided by military police, cordoned off a two-block area around the crash scene.

A Navy spokesman confirmed that an A7 from Lemoore, 150 miles south of here, was missing. He identified the pilot as Lt. Robert Lee Ward, 28, from Cary, N.C., who was attached to a Navy squadron at Lemoore.

The plane and a companion aircraft were reportedly on approach to the Alameda Naval Air Station, about two miles from the crash scene.

Alameda Mayor Terry Lacroix called the crash "the worst fire and holocaust ever in the city." Alameda, an island city adjacent to Oakland and across the bay to the east of San Francisco, has a population of about 66,000.

Rail Strike Shuts Down Penn Central

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — All passenger and freight service on the Penn Central railroad was halted today by a strike of 28,000 conductors and brakemen trying to stop the nation's largest rail line from reducing train crews by a third.

"We have the right to negotiate cutbacks in our contract," said the United Transportation Union, AFL-CIO, as it set up picket lines at Penn Central depots in 16 states, two Canadian provinces and the District of Columbia.

"We're out of business," a railroad spokesman said, acknowledging that the remaining 67,000 operating employees — represented by other unions — would honor the picket lines.

There was no indication whether the Nixon administration, which had delayed the walkout 30 days, would make new efforts now to end it.

Trustees of the Penn Central, now undergoing reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws, said the hardships facing shippers and passenger who use the 1,300 freight and 1,412 passenger trains the line operates daily were "unfortunate and unnecessary."

They estimated the walkout could result in lost revenues of $20 million if it lasts five days and around $55 million if it continues a month. They explained that the heaviest impact would come in the first week.

There are more than 200,000 daily passengers, most of them commuters in the New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Detroit and Chicago areas. Many are expected to shift to auto transportation.

The key to the dispute, unresolved after more than 18 months of negotiations, is new work rules authorized by U.S. District Court Judge John P. Fullman, who is supervising the reorganization.

Penn Central trustees said the rules became "effective today" — touching off the UTU strike.

"They reduce the size of train crews from three to two and eliminate over-manning, but only as jobs are vacated because of retirement, death, etc.," said the trustees of the new work rules.

The Penn Central goal is to eliminate 5,700 jobs by 1980 and, thus, save about $100 million annually.

The walkout, if not swiftly settled, could deal a death blow to the giant system. The railroad says it is now losing $600,000 daily and will need around $800 million in fresh federal money to become solvent again by 1976 — and only then if at least 3,000 of its 20,000 miles of track are discontinued.

Vietnam Details Hammered Out

SAIGON (AP) — The four parties to the Vietnam ceasefire agreement held a series of meetings today, making arrangements for the release of the first group of American prisoners held in south Vietnam this weekend, U.S. officials said.

A senior American official in Saigon said Wednesday that the first group would be freed Saturday, but later reports from Defense Department sources in Washington said 27 prisoners of war would be handed over on Sunday.

U.S. officials said representatives of the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong were ironing out the final details today. They would not elaborate.

The Pentagon sources said the Viet Cong plans to make the first transfer near An Loc, a provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon.

There was still no firm word on release of the first American prisoners by North Vietnam, but indications were that it would come in Hanoi early next week during the visit of U.S. presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

The Viet Cong, meanwhile, accused the Saigon government of violating the cease-fire agreement by releasing some 10,600 POWs who Saigon said changed their allegiance after political indoctrination.

A Viet Cong broadcast said the release violated Articles 1 and 5 of the prisoner protocol. Article 1 says all captured Vietnamese military personnel shall be returned to the South Vietnamese party under whose command they served. Article 5 specifies that the prisoners shall be returned at sites agreed upon by the Joint Military Commission, made up of the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Canada, a member of the four-nation International Commission of Control and Supervision, announced that it has formally recognized the government of North Vietnam as a demonstration of its "objectivity and impartiality."

Michel Gauvin, the Canadian chairman of the International Commission, told a news conference that the South Vietnamese government — which Canada also recognizes — has accepted the recognition of North Vietnam as "realistic, dispassionate and very logical."

Canada is the only member of the commission to recognize both Vietnams. Hungary and Poland recognize only North Vietnam, and Indonesia recognizes only South Vietnam.

Delegates to the Joint Military Commission also were working on plans to get Viet Cong representatives to the seven regional headquarters sites in South Vietnam for truce observer teams so both the International Commission and the Joint Commission could begin policing the cease-fire. The International Commission's regional teams and the American and North and South Vietnamese men from the Joint Commission are already at the posts but cannot move into the field without the Viet Cong.

Full-Scale Rioting Brings 5 More Deaths In Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — Five more persons were killed in Belfast as gun battles, bombing, rioting and arson raged across the capital of Northern Ireland.

The victims Wednesday night included a fireman shot by a sniper, a youngster murdered by an assassination squad and three Protestant guerrillas killed in a shootout with the British army. The confirmed death toll in 3½ years of religious warfare rose to 717.

Rioting was widespread; at one time every available fire engine in Belfast was at work; and the army was under fire from both sides.

"We have lost count of the number of homes and shops bombed and burned," a police spokesman said during the evening.

Roman Catholic homes also were burned in at least three other towns.

Protestant hoodlums roaming in packs called Tartan Gangs desecrated a Roman Catholic church in Belfast and started to smash up the home of the parish priest, but the army drove them off with a barrage of rubber bullets.

Other Tartans set fire to another Catholic church and besieged a convent school for mentally handicapped children. The 25 children were getting ready for bed when a hail of rocks and bottles smashed the dormitory windows. One of the nuns took the children downstairs and led them in a round of songs to take their minds off the rioting. But the barrage shattered the stained glass windows of the tiny chapel.

Again the army drove the mob off with rubber bullets.

Dozens of others were injured during the day, including two men treated for sword wounds, hospitals reported. No details on that were available.

The bloodshed coincided with a 24-hour strike called by militant

Protestants to protest the detention of two suspected terrorists and to demand the return of the suspended provincial parliament.

Nixon Uses Tax Increase Fears As Budget Weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — In President Nixon's budget battle with Congress, one simple word—taxes—is the key weapon.

It is a formidable one. For while Congress argues about impoundment of funds, division of powers, and defense of Democratic programs, the President stresses the simplest of themes:

Accept the administration's blueprint for a budget with a tight $268.7-billion lid, or risk a tax increase and take the political blame.

In every public statement on the budget and the economy, and in his this year's initial State of the Union message, the Republican President has put the argument in those terms.

Essentially what Nixon and his spokesmen argue is that if the Democratic Congress doesn't follow his budget the Democratic Congress will be responsible for higher taxes and the voters will be watching.

Defending his refusal to spend some money appropriated by Congress during its last session, Nixon said flatly that he will keep impounding funds if to do otherwise would lead to an increase in taxes.

Presidential impoundment of congressional appropriations is, to most Americans, an abstract concept. Taxes are not. And that is Nixon's advantage as he makes his case with the nation.

He said in his budget message: "I do not believe the American people want higher taxes any more than they want inflation."

Few can argue with that, and Nixon has said that if Congress doesn't accept his spending limits it will have to take the blame for one or both of those outcomes.

He has described himself as representative of the general interest that demands holding the line on taxes and prices. Nixon contrasted that with what he described as special interests competing in Congress for more spending on favored programs.

Germ-Killer Hunt Baffles FDA Agents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food and Drug Administration officials weighing the safety of germ-killing agents in household products say they are having trouble finding out which products contain the chemicals.

A panel of doctors appointed by FDA was charged with determining the safety and effectiveness of such germ-killers as hexachlorophene in toilet soaps.

The panel recommended a virtual ban on hexachlorophene, which was ordered off the over-the-counter market last September except for low-level use as a preservative.

Now the panel says evidence it has seen has failed to prove the safety of five other antibacterial agents in soap, and FDA officials are trying to find out what other products use the five agents.

"Knowing just what's on the market is very difficult," said Dr. Jean Lockhart, FDA medical officer in the division of anti-infective drugs.

"For the most part we don't know what they've substituted. We are not getting good cooperation from the cosmetic manufacturers generally who are using antimicrobial ingredients."

Over the 30 years of its use in non-prescription products, hexachlorophene had turned up in soaps, deodorants, vaginal sprays, shaving cream, mouthwash, skin lotion, toothpaste, furnace air filters and even toilet seats.

Hexachlorophene was found to cause brain lesions in laboratory animals. It was banned after U.S. studies showed infants bathed in it suffered brain damage and after nearly 40 French babies died from a talcum powder containing accidentally high levels of hexachlorophene.

Party Petitions Filed For May Primary Vote

Seventeen people have filed petitions at the County Board of Elections to have their names placed on the ballot for the May 8 primary elections.

Second ward voters will decide only contested races in the primary elections.

Democrats battling for a place on the November ballot are Samuel F. Cook, 408 E. Mound St., and John W. Jenkins, 666 E. Mound St.

Republicans running for their party's place on the ballot are Terry D. Agin, 506 Ruth Ave., and Robert G. Ogden, 556 N. Pickaway St.

Democrats filed for every available seat.

James H. Locke filed for president of council; Councilman-at-large candidates are David Crawford, Ben Gordon, and Lorene Weikert; Burl Wiggins is seeking the first ward council seat; Harold Hoffman is seeking third ward council seat; Gladden Troutman is running for fourth ward council representative; Everett P. Stocklen is running for treasurer.

On the Republican ledger, Joseph Bell is running for council president; Robert Kenworthy and Tommy Wells are running for councilman-at-large; David Goldschmidt is running for first ward councilman; and Dixie Watters is running for fourth ward council seat.

Party winners in May will face each other in the November general election. Unopposed candidates are automatically assured of a place on the November ballot.

Weather

Cold wave warnings. High mid 20s today with an 80 per cent chance of snow, accumulations 1 to 3 inches. Clear and cold tonight, low near 5. Mostly sunny and cold tomorrow, high near 20. High Wednesday, 40; Low, 32.

Viet Bonus Approved; Faces Ohio Senate Test

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hardly anybody opposes a bonus for Vietnam War veterans, but the matter of how it's paid for touched off considerable debate in the House Wednesday.

Majority Democrats, picking up Republican defectors, approved the $300 million proposal, which could face voters in the May primary, 72-20.

But the battle is not over.

The issue now goes to the Senate, which Republicans control 17-16. Democrats control the House 58-41. Seventeen Republicans voted for it and 19 against it on the House floor.

All Democrats voted for it. It was sponsored by Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, speaker pro tem in the Democratic-controlled House.

Democrats want the measure, which provides up to $500 for a returning veteran, financed by a six-tenths mill property tax increase.

Republican opponents, including Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg—would like to see the money come out of the state's general revenue fund.

Gov. John Gilligan has said he objects to any aid on that fund unless the revenue is replaced. The general revenue fund is used to pay routine state expenses.

Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, said he believes the House resolution called for a constitutional amendment on the proposal will have trouble making it through the Senate.

"It will have to be passed within 10 days to make it on the May ballot," Maloney said. "I don't believe that can happen."

Under the Democratic proposal, the state would issue a $300 million in bonds. The bonds would be retired over 15 years with the property tax increase.

Opposition Republicans contend the proposal violated Gov. John Gilligan's pledge of no new taxes during the current biennium.

The bonus, if approved by the Senate and the voters, would go to an estimated 545,000 veterans who served in any branch of the armed service since 1961.

Each would be compensated $10 for each month of active domestic service, $15 a month for any foreign service and $20 a month for service in the Asian theater between Dec. 1961, and Aug. 4, 1974.

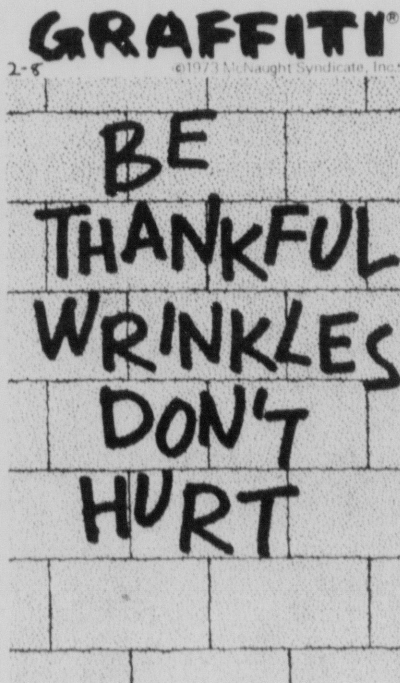

Veterans discharged because of wounds suffered in Vietnam would get the maximum $500 regardless of the amount of time they served.

One-time payments of $1,000 would go to survivors of Ohioans killed in Southeast Asia. Riffe said survivors of 2,996 Ohioans would be eligible.

In the Senate, there was no floor action, but nine bills were introduced. Thirteen others were introduced in the House.

Among the measures are ones that would:

—Conform state unemployment compensation laws with those of the federal government and extended benefits to Great Lakes seamen.

Each would be compensated $10 for each month of active domestic service, $15 a month for any foreign service and $20 a month for service in the Asian theater between Dec. 1961, and Aug. 4, 1974.

Veterans discharged because of wounds suffered in Vietnam would get the maximum $500 regardless of the amount of time they served.

One-time payments of $1,000 would go to survivors of Ohioans killed in Southeast Asia. Riffe said survivors of 2,996 Ohioans would be eligible.

In the Senate, there was no floor action, but nine bills were introduced. Thirteen others were introduced in the House.

Among the measures are ones that would:

—Conform state unemployment compensation laws with those of the federal government and extended benefits to Great Lakes seamen.

Benefits would increase about five per cent.

—License automobile repair dealers.

Lift the $3,000 maximum exemption from the state income tax ($500 for the taxpayer and the same for each of up to five dependents). Sen. Maloney said it discriminated against large families.

—Abolish municipal courts in Franklin and Hamilton counties, Springfield, Bryan, Toledo, Maumee, Oregon and Sylvania and a police court in Ottawa Hills. All would be replaced within municipal divisions within the common pleas courts in those counties.

—Designate the third Monday in January as "Martin Luther King Day," and make it a legal holiday.

Senate Votes For Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rejecting Republican attempts to expand its focus, the Senate has voted to form a special committee to investigate the Watergate bugging incident and other allegations of GOP political espionage against Democrats in 1972.

The vote Wednesday was 77 to 0 after Republican senators failed to gain equal membership on the panel and to broaden its inquiry to include charges of Democratic misdeeds in the 1964

CROP Walk Third Best In State

Once again last year, the 1972 CROP Hunger Walk by the young people of Pickaway County raised the third highest total of money in the state of Ohio.

A report issued today by the Ohio CROP Office showed that only walks in the Springfield and Warren areas raised more money in 1972. Four separate walks in Franklin County raised a higher overall total, but no one walk there exceeded Pickaway County's.

$4,098.21 was received through last Fall's walk here, making a total county contribution to CROP in 1972 of $4,277.31, the Twelfth largest in Ohio. This was an increase over 1971 of $562 in the walk and $559 in the overall county total. To show how significant a contribution over Hunger Walks of the past two years have been, Pickaway County is only 37th in the state in giving to CROP over its 25 year existence. In 1972 over $200,000 was raised for CROP in Ohio.

CROP is the Hunger Appeal of Church World Service, an interdenominational effort to help eliminate the root causes of hunger in the world. CROP is currently helping in Nicaragua following the devastating earthquake. It is estimated that as many as 25 more catastrophes will occur in 1973 in which CROP will have a major role in relieving hunger, in addition to helping in the continuing tragedy of 2 billion hungry people in the world.

The Rev. Roy Osborn and The Rev. Charles Hemming served as co-chairmen of the 1972 CROP Hunger Walk, and The Rev. David Allardice served as general chairman for CROP in Pickaway County. Serving as committee chairmen were Becky Frost and Paul Elswick, route; Ann Yates, recruitment; Marie Pierce, refreshments; Pat Oldaker, finance; and Trudy Yates, publicity.

wiretapping in connection with the break-in and bugging of Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington. Five other persons, including a former Nixon security man, pleaded guilty to similar charges early in the trial.

Democrats initiated the congressional probe, saying the trial failed to investigate the bugging, partly because the Nixon administration's Justice Department was reluctant to fully probe allegations that high-ranking White House officials approved the operation.

Life Expectancy Shortened For American Returnees?

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — If previous wars are any guide, prisoners returning from captivity in North or South Vietnam may have long-term medical problems and less-than-normal life expectancy, the top Pentagon consultant on POWs said today.

Roger E. Shields, prisoner-of-war specialist for the assistant secretary of defense for international security, said studies of men released during the Korean War show "that POWs have medical problems that stay with them through life and that life expectancy is measurably shortened."

Shields arrived Wednesday at Clark Air Base, the Asian headquarters for the U.S. prisoner returnee program that he played a large part in designing.

"We can't make up to these guys for time lost," he said, noting that doctors who have studied previous prisoners urge that the Vietnam returnees be eased gradually into normal life.

The length of captivity is the major difference between the Vietnam POWs and the captives released after World War II and the Korean War, Shields said.

"Before, the longest time an American POW had been held was 3 1/2 years," he said. "Now the average length of internment is more than four years, and some POWs are into their eight and ninth years of captivity." He added that the attitudes of Americans during the Vietnam war "have not been the traditional attitudes of Americans during a conflict. The families have had to live with this, and these men will also have to adjust to it."

Three Request Jury Trials

Four men were arraigned in Common Pleas Court Wednesday on criminal charges from armed robbery to non-support.

Twenty-five year old Arthur Davis, reportedly from New York, pleaded innocent to a charge of armed robbery at the Rich Service Station in South Bloomfield. He asked for a jury to hear his case.

Paul F. Stevens, 618 Maplewood Ave., charged with not providing support for his 12-year-old son, entered a plea of guilty and was placed on probation for two years.

Not guilty pleas were entered by Forrest Mumaw, 19, of Cottage Hill and Roger Levan, Dearborn Ave., for the attempted burglary of a Walnut St. home last fall. They also asked for a jury trial.

Sanford P. Routh appeared yesterday and refused to waive extradition proceedings to Washington County, Indiana. Authorities there are seeking Routh on a theft by deception charge.

Nineteen year old William Young, charged for the burglary of a coin device belonging to Jack Heeter, was placed on probation for three years. He had entered a guilty plea earlier.

Assistant James Kingsley represented the prosecutor's office due to the illness of Richard Gerhard.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who has been designated chairman, said the committee probably won't be ready to begin public hearings for a couple of months.

Members of the panel will be named by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Hugh Scott.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler has pledged administration cooperation with any nonpartisan investigation. The White House was reported to favor an evenly divided committee.

Two former officials of President Nixon's re-election campaign were convicted by a U.S. District Court Jan. 30 of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping in connection with the break-in and bugging of Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington. Five other persons, including a former Nixon security man, pleaded guilty to similar charges early in the trial.

Democrats initiated the congressional probe, saying the trial failed to investigate the bugging, partly because the Nixon administration's Justice Department was reluctant to fully probe allegations that high-ranking White House officials approved the operation.

2-Car Accident Sends Hatfield To Hospital

Mansfield Highway Patrol is currently investigating an accident which occurred Tuesday and involved a Circleville man, Jimmy Hatfield.

Hatfield, 45, of 1339 S. Pickaway St., is in Mansfield General Hospital where he underwent surgery. He is in room 231.

The patrol report is incomplete, but indicates Hatfield was northbound on Interstate 71 about 8 1/2 miles north of the Morrow County line when his auto collided with the rear of another auto operated by a 36-year-old Sunbury man, Mryon Franklin.

Franklin was injured, but according to the Patrol, he required only emergency treatment at the hospital and was released. Investigation into the crash is continuing.

Life Expectancy Shortened For American Returnees?

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — If previous wars are any guide, prisoners returning from captivity in North or South Vietnam may have longer medical problems and less-than-normal life expectancy, the top Pentagon consultant on POWs said today.

Roger E. Shields, prisoner-of-war specialist for the assistant secretary of defense for international security, said studies of men released during the Korean War show "that POWs have medical problems that stay with them through life and that life expectancy is measurably shortened."

Shields arrived Wednesday at Clark Air Base, the Asian headquarters for the U.S. prisoner returnee program that he played a large part in designing.

"We can't make up to these guys for time lost," he said, noting that doctors who have studied previous prisoners urge that the Vietnam returnees be eased gradually into normal life.

The length of captivity is the major difference between the Vietnam POWs and the captives released after World War II and the Korean War, Shields said.

"Before, the longest time an American POW had been held was 3 1/2 years," he said. "Now the average length of internment is more than four years, and some POWs are into their eight and ninth years of captivity." He added that the attitudes of Americans during the Vietnam war "have not been the traditional attitudes of Americans during a conflict. The families have had to live with this, and these men will also have to adjust to it."

Three Request Jury Trials

Four men were arraigned in Common Pleas Court Wednesday on criminal charges from armed robbery to non-support.

Twenty-five year old Arthur Davis, reportedly from New York, pleaded innocent to a charge of armed robbery at the Rich Service Station in South Bloomfield. He asked for a jury to hear his case.

Paul F. Stevens, 618 Maplewood Ave., charged with not providing support for his 12-year-old son, entered a plea of guilty and was placed on probation for two years.

Not guilty pleas were entered by Forrest Mumaw, 19, of Cottage Hill and Roger Levan, Dearborn Ave., for the attempted burglary of a Walnut St. home last fall. They also asked for a jury trial.

Sanford P. Routh appeared yesterday and refused to waive extradition proceedings to Washington County, Indiana. Authorities there are seeking Routh on a theft by deception charge.

Nineteen year old William Young, charged for the burglary of a coin device belonging to Jack Heeter, was placed on probation for three years. He had entered a guilty plea earlier.

Assistant James Kingsley represented the prosecutor's office due to the illness of Richard Gerhardt.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren
If You Can't Afford - Don't Buy

DEAR ABBY: I teach a course here in Dalton Junior College in consumer self protection, so I was especially interested in that letter from "Broke and Disgusted," whose wife insisted on an expensive wedding for their daughter even though they were in hock up to their ears. May I offer some practical suggestions?

Throw away your credit cards, and don't buy ANYTHING you don't have the cash for. If you can't keep up with the Joneses, stay away from them. When it comes to buying groceries, check the newspaper ads carefully and compare prices. You can save a small fortune and eat a lot better if you buy house brands. Develop some self control! Don't buy anything on impulse. Go to two or three other stores and see what's available there, then wait a day or two and think it over. You'll be surprised how much you DON'T want what you thought you thought you couldn't live without yesterday.

RAYMOND L. CHAMBERS,
DALTON, GA.
DEAR PROFESSOR: Gee, I wish I were in Dixie. I'd sign up for your course. You make a lot of sense.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this from the hospital after having given birth to our first child. He is a healthy, beautiful baby boy and we are so thrilled because my husband is an only son, and now we are assured of having someone to carry on the family name.

My husband and I decided to name our son. Please don't mention the name if you use this letter. It's an unusual name, but my husband and I both like it. Well, last evening his mother called and begged me to please change the baby's name. She said that nobody in the family liked the name we selected and she thought out of respect to my father in law, we should have named the baby after HIM. (My father-in-law is still living.)

I didn't know what else to say, so I

Abercrombie is a 1938 graduate of Purdue University, where Butz had been Dean of the College of Agriculture and a professor until he became agriculture secretary in early 1972.

Abercrombie claimed Butz is "too far removed" from the small, independent American farmer and too close to corporate interests, such as Ralston Purina Co. and John Deere Co.

Butz served on the board of directors for the two companies dealing in livestock feeds and tractor and farm implements.

"I don't dislike him personally," said Abercrombie, "but I do disagree with him on several points. We don't see eye-to-eye on family farming."

Urge LBJ Name For Space Center

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a resolution Tuesday to name the government's manned spacecraft control center in Houston, Tex., in honor of Lyndon B. Johnson.

Sen. Lloyd Bensten, D-Tex., sponsor of the resolution, said the late President deserves the honor more than any other man since his administration covered the entire Gemini orbital flight program and the first eight launches in the Apollo moon landing program.

The resolution now goes to the House.

just said, "I will talk to my husband about it."

I spoke to my husband, and he said he will leave it up to me. Abby, now I am on the spot. I don't want his family against me, but I don't want to change the baby's name. Can you help me?

NEW MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Tell you husband that you don't want the responsibility of making that decision alone. Discuss it and let it be known that the decision was jointly made. And since you wrote to me, I'm all for naming the boy exactly what you prefer!

DEAR ABBY: I am 83 and live alone; my principal activities since my retirement from the teaching staff at Purdue University are "relative hunting" and working crossword puzzles. I take time out every morning to read the headlines, editorials and Dear Abby.

I am moved to comment about the Dad who took his 14-year-old son to a football game, left at halftime to take some pills for his asthma, and had not returned by the time the game had ended. The frightened lad waited by his Dad's parked car until the stadium lights were turned off, then made his way to a phone and called his sister to come and get him. Together they drove to the nearest police station to report the "missing" Dad, and there they learned that he had been locked up by a policeman for "drunkenness."

That reminded me of a similar incident which occurred near Corning, N.Y., where I was raised. A local workman on his way home from work tied his horse and wagon to the watering trough and went into a bar for a drink. Later that evening the local constable found him leaning against a tree and locked him up for drunkenness. The next morning the horse was still at the trough, but its owner was dead-in jail. He had been sick, not drunk.

The Ohio secretary said the federal government has recently taken two actions that particularly hurt the small family farmer.

He said the government cut back on emergency crop loans to farmers during a time of serious need in Ohio, and has dropped the Rural Environmental Assistance Program, which aided small farmers in conserving land and natural resources.

As a result, the small family farmers is "getting kicked in the seat of his pants," said Abercrombie. "What in the hell do you do with them when they have to leave the farm? Send them to Dayton or Cleveland and put them on welfare?"

He said the small family farm should be preserved because it is the "epitome of efficiency."

"The small, independent farmer has invested his own dollars and has everything to gain. He is willing to get up before dawn and work until after dark."

"On a corporate farm with hired labor there is a lack of interest among the employees, other than for the paycheck. They would rather get up at 8 or 9 in the morning than at dawn."

Abercrombie estimated that one-half of one per cent of the 110,000 farms in Ohio are corporate in nature. As a result, he said, the corporate farm has not had too much impact in the state.

The Ohio agriculture leader owns a 500-acre family corporation farm in Hamilton County.

"My farm is set up as a family corporation so I can pass it on to my three sons," he says, "It is not a conglomerate, and I do it for tax reasons only."

Tax Returns Of Farmers Under Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has ordered the Internal Revenue Service to open its files to Agriculture Department investigators seeking information on the nation's farmers.

An executive order signed without fanfare by the President last month would give the Agriculture Department access to farmers' income tax returns from 1967 to the present.

The department said Monday the information is needed so it can update estimates on crop and livestock production.

But Rep. Jerry Litton, a freshman Democrat from Missouri, said the department could get all the information it needed through its routine farm census. He accused Nixon of invading the privacy of the nation's farmers.

Rep. Clem Rogers McSpadden, D-Okla., concurred. "Tax returns," he said, "should be considered privileged information."

The executive order says: "It is hereby ordered that income tax returns made for taxable years beginning on or after Jan. 4, 1967, of persons having farm operations shall be open to inspection to the extent readily available in the Internal Revenue Service (for the purpose of obtaining data about such persons' farm operations) by the Department of Agriculture as may be needed for statistical purposes only."

The order was entered in the Federal Register on Jan. 17 but no announcement was made.

Tax Returns Of Farmers Under Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has ordered the Internal Revenue Service to open its files to Agriculture Department investigators seeking information on the nation's farmers.

An executive order signed without fanfare by the President last month would give the Agriculture Department access to farmers' income tax returns from 1967 to the present.

The department said Monday the information is needed so it can update estimates on crop and livestock production.

But Rep. Jerry Litton, a freshman Democrat from Missouri, said the department could get all the information it needed through its routine farm census. He accused Nixon of invading the privacy of the nation's farmers.

Rep. Clem Rogers McSpadden, D-Okla., concurred. "Tax returns," he said, "should be considered privileged information."

The executive order says:

"It is hereby ordered that income tax returns made for taxable years beginning on or after Jan. 4, 1967, of persons having farm operations shall be open to inspection to the extent readily available in the Internal Revenue Service (for the purpose of obtaining data about such persons' farm operations) by the Department of Agriculture as may be needed for statistical purposes only."

The order was entered in the Federal Register on Jan. 17 but no announcement was made.

Dear Abby:

If You Can't Afford - Don't Buy

DEAR ABBY: I teach a course here in Dalton Junior College in consumer self protection, so I was especially interested in that letter from "Broke and Disgusted," whose wife insisted on an expensive wedding for their daughter even though they were in hock up to their ears. May I offer some practical suggestions?

Throw away your credit cards, and don't buy ANYTHING you don't have the cash for. If you can't keep up with the Joneses, stay away from them. When it comes to buying groceries, check the newspaper ads carefully and compare prices. You can save a small fortune and eat a lot better if you buy house brands. Develop some self control! Don't buy anything on impulse. Go to two or three other stores and see what's available there, then wait a day or two and think it over. You'll be surprised how much you DON'T want what you thought you thought you couldn't live without yesterday.

RAYMOND L. CHAMBERS, DALTON, GA.

DEAR PROFESSOR: Gee, I wish I were in Dixie. I'd sign up for your course. You make a lot of sense.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this from the hospital after having given birth to our first child. He is a healthy, beautiful baby boy and we are so thrilled because my husband is an only son, and now we are assured of having someone to carry on the family name.

My husband and I decided to name our son. Please don't mention the name if you use this letter. It's an unusual name, but my husband and I both like it. Well, last evening his mother called and begged me to please change the baby's name. She said that nobody in the family liked the name we selected and she thought out of respect to my father in law, we should have named the baby after HIM. (My father-in-law is still living.)

I didn't know what else to say, so I

just said, "I will talk to my husband about it."

I spoke to my husband, and he said he will leave it up to me. Abby, now I am on the spot. I don't want his family against me, but I don't want to change the baby's name. Can you help me?

NEW MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Tell your husband that you don't want the responsibility of making that decision alone. Discuss it and let it be known that the decision was jointly made. And since you wrote to me, I'm all for naming the boy exactly what you prefer!

DEAR ABBY: I am 83 and live alone; my principal activities since my retirement from the teaching staff at Purdue University are "relative hunting" and working crossword puzzles. I take time out every morning to read the headlines, editorials and Dear Abby.

I am moved to comment about the Dad who took his 14-year-old son to a football game, left at halftime to take some pills for his asthma, and had not returned by the time the game had ended. The frightened lad waited by his Dad's parked car until the stadium lights were turned off, then made his way to a phone and called his sister to come and get him. Together they drove to the nearest police station to report the "missing" Dad, and there they learned that he had been locked up by a policeman for "drunkenness."

That reminded me of a similar incident which occurred near Corning, N.Y., where I was raised. A local workman on his way home from work tied his horse and wagon at the watering trough and went into a bar for a drink. Later that evening the local constable found him leaning against a tree and locked him up for drunkenness. The next morning the horse was still at the trough, but its owner was dead-in-jail. He had been sick, not drunk.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, majority leader of the U.S. Senate, has joined the ranks of environmentalists who have gone off the deep end. The senator joined the club by advocating a total prohibition on all forms of coal mining until plans for protecting the environment can be formed.

There is irony in the fact the senator takes his stand at a time when an energy crisis has descended upon parts of the United States. It is a crisis caused largely by lack of sufficient fossil fuels to meet the demands increasing uses of electricity and the vagaries of winter heating requirements have placed upon existing supplies.

Coal is not the cleanest fuel and its extraction from the Earth is among the more dangerous mining activities. Further, past practices in mining operations have left huge scars and other after-effects on the land which certainly are to be condemned.

But in many states where coal mining is a significant industry, that is not the case now. Strip-mined land is being reclaimed for farming, recreation and conservation.

Coal never again may be the king of fuels it once was. But it is an energy resource which can help when oil and gas are in short supply. A spare fuel tank is useless, however, if it is turned off.

The Abortion Ruling

By JEFFREY HART

During the last decade, powerful tendencies toward fragmentation have come to the surface in American society. No doubt their sources have long been present, and it may be that they are irreversible. Black nationalism is only one spectacular example. The entire meaning of the counter-culture, for example resides in its rejection of the norms of the surrounding society. And, more subtly, we have seen the rise of "ethnic consciousness," and with it, inevitably, a certain attenuation of the national idea, the notion of America as the foundation of identity.

The 7-2 ruling of the Supreme Court, which in effect completely legitimizes abortion during the first six months of pregnancy, will undoubtedly have as its primary political effect the strengthening of those fragmenting tendencies. A great many Roman Catholics, and how many it is difficult to say, can scarcely do less than reconsider their relation to the larger American society.

To be sure, the polls suggest that a substantial number of Catholics do take a liberal position on abortion. Still others, caught up in their day-to-day existence, will swallow the court's ruling along with a lot of other undesirable features of modern life, and go on with their personal affairs.

But for many, the court's ruling is bound to mean a fundamental revision of their relation to the society. In the immediate future, public clinics and hospitals, supported out of the public treasury, will be performing abortions on a routine, mass basis. Can those who view abortion as a crime, perhaps even as murder, continue to contribute through their taxes to the public abortion mills? It seems to me that we are likely to face some spectacular, and perhaps even widespread, personal protests on this point.

Less activist Catholics will hold their noses and pay their taxes, but also — and in varying degrees, doubtless — experience a kind of spiritual withdrawal from the larger American society, an "inner emigration." They will be less inclined to participate in public life, less concerned over the ultimate fate of the country, less eager to advance the well-being of the nation.

Others, however, may become even more active in political matters, endeavoring through the political process to reverse the results of the court's ruling. This will be difficult, if not impossible, given the experience of trying to upset the earlier prayer ruling; but their is much talk already of a Constitutional amendment, and perhaps the thing can be done.

Setting aside the substance of this issue, and considering the manner in which it has been resolved, the following seems fairly obvious. When the court acts to settle a complex social or ethical issue, the effect is almost always divisive, fragmenting. This is because the court appeals to so-called principles which it claims — often unconsciously to many — to find in the text of the Constitution. The political process, on the other hand, as manifested in the state and national legislatures, often or even usually has a reconciling effect. This is because the political process involves bargaining and, therefore, trade-offs and compromises. No segment of the national community gets everything it wants, but each gets enough to keep it part of the process.

Over a decade ago, the late Rev. John Courtney Murray, a well-known Jesuit and liberal theologian, published an influential book called "We Hold These Truths" in which he envisioned a pluralistic America, composed of diverse groups, diverse, yes, but agreeing on certain axioms which all Americans supposedly held in common. Murray, it became clear in subsequent years, seriously underestimated the power of modern secularism and positivism. And the abortion ruling would certainly seem to give the coup de grace to Murray's vision of a unified, pluralistic America.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments by the Pavement Plato: Do you ever stop to think how much of your life is spent in performing rituals?

A wild animal lives largely by obeying his instincts, a human being by the rituals he follows.

Rituals are the little habits of conduct by which we meet the common occurrences of our existence. They govern us from dawn to dawn, from Monday through Sunday. They are helpful because they tell us what to do in most situations, but sometimes they also bore us half to death.

They become too patterned, too chorelike, and at times we yearn to break out of the confinement of rituals and do something wild, free and mildly insane. And, of course, at times most of us do.

Here are a few commonplace rituals:

Shaving, the most irksome task of any man's life.

Brushing your teeth. Spraying something in your armpits so you won't smell like nature meant you to.

Telling a hospital patient he looks swell when he looks like hell.

Saying something nice about the hero of the occasion at a funeral, when your private opinion is that the world would have been better off if he had died ten years before.

Picking up bar and restaurant

checks for liberated women.

Laughing at the right time when the boss tells a joke, no matter whether you memorized the joke yourself when you were in high school.

Congratulating the pastor of your church on Sunday on the powerful sermon he preached that you never really listened to.

Going to functions where they have after dinner speeches.

Going to cocktail parties where everybody is either too clever or too pontifical.

Telling our innocent little children how they must behave if they want to grow up and be safe and happy — like us.

So we wear out our lives from birth to the tomb, performing this little ritual...that little ritual. What would happen if for a single day every person in the world ceased to go through any of his usual rituals whatsoever?

That's easy. We'd all be thrown in jail before nightfall. Without rituals, people get into nothing but trouble.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A cough represents one of the most common symptoms that may or may not be brought to the attention of the doctor.

A cough is frequently associated with any kind of upper respiratory infection. The common cold, the grippe, and the flu often leave in their wake a cough which may vary from simple irritation to one that is disquieting and distressing.

Patients often buy over-the-counter medicines in the hope that any one product, even those haphazardly chosen, will be the answer to their cough. In some instances, a cough is alleviated by these products. In others, the cough may be unaffected.

In order to better understand why a "shotgun" mixture of over-the-counter cough medicines should not routinely be used, the mechanism of a cough should be more clearly understood.

A cough means that there is some irritation along the respiratory airways, including the throat, the pharynx, the larynx, the bronchial tubes and the lungs.

Inflammation of the lining of the breathing apparatus, infection, irritation like tobacco smoke, harsh chemicals, and swelling of the lining by allergy may produce the cough. This entire reflex action is one of the most carefully designed protective mechanisms in the body.

When an irritant is present, anywhere along the air passages a signal is sent to a very specific point in the brain, the cough center. From here, further signals are sent to the lungs, the diaphragm and the muscles of the chest, telling them that an explosive cough is necessary to get rid of the offending irritant.

NEW YORK (AP) — The merits of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Long's case against the Internal Revenue Service will have to be decided by the courts, but in the meantime he is giving them an irritating, frustrating and costly time of it.

It is only fair, says Long, a Bellevue, Wash., real estate man, because that same technique has become one of the specialties of the IRS and it shouldn't be so. He's out not only to prove his case but to restrain the IRS.

Ever since he and his wife, a 30-year-old graduate student who specializes in analyzing data, were informed by the IRS more than three years ago that they owed an additional $38,144 in taxes, they have been on the trail of the IRS.

"It's all we do," the Longs said in an interview. "It's bad but it is worse for today or to you today but it is worse for it to happen to anybody tomorrow." And so they are determined to make a case for themselves and the public.

In pursuit of their goal they have already spent $10,000 of their own money in publicizing the case, in newspaper ads, in research, in trips to Washington, in postage for letters to others "clobbered by the IRS," and in digging information about the IRS from its own files.

Their research in IRS files had followed a court ruling in favor of the Longs last September that opened sections of the internal procedures manual to public scrutiny. The Longs had earlier been denied the information.

In their research, the Longs have already revealed IRS procedures and practices that could pose serious future problems, such as:

—In contested cases, the amount on the dollar settled for in different districts varied widely in 1971. How you fare may depend upon where you live. In Newark, N.J., settlements averaged 50 cents on the dollar; in Washington, 24.

—On average, settlements with

Some coughs are dry, hacking, and "non-productive." This means that no secretions are brought up.

Others are "productive" coughs, which means that mucus and pus, the result of an infection, must be cleared from the respiratory tract.

It is apparent, therefore, that different drugs are used for different types of coughs. It must be apparent, too, that self-medication is not the ideal way to treat a persistent cough.

Even though many of the available products are excellent, the choice must be made more carefully than by the imprinted messages of advertisers.

Some coughs must be suppressed. Others must be stimulated. Sometimes it is necessary to "loosen" a cough. Other times it is necessary to "dry up" a cough.

In some cases, codeine, one of the ingredients in drugs purchased without a prescription, may be the wrong drug for the cough.

It is important to note that codeine, a narcotic, can in many states be purchased without a prescription. Drug addicts quickly learn the availability of such cough medicines and make their daily rounds of purchases to supply their daily needs.

A simple rule of safety is to ask a physician's advice. Often he can, even by telephone description, decide on a cough medicine that would be most effective.

individuals were for 34 cents on the dollar in 1971 compared to only 27 cents on the dollar for corporations.

Long is an outraged man. He claims the IRS as a matter of policy challenges many individual and small business returns, "not because there is a question of them being wrong but simply to obtain additional funds for the IRS."

In doing so, he claims, they use arbitrary interpretations of IRS rules and then attempt to deny the taxpayer access to those rules. They harass, and might even threaten jeopardy assessments, he says. That was so in his case, he adds.

Long, slight and graying at 56, owns, rents or manages duplex houses that were built mostly by his father. To do so, he has set up corporations.

As an officer in the corporations, he has for the past 12 years or so been paying himself $600 a month. In addition, he has been deducting such costs as insurance, telephone charges, subscriptions to financial publications and the like.

The IRS viewed two of these corporations as personal holding companies, which are subject to high taxes because they often are used, in the words of an IRS spokesman, "as incorporated pocketbooks," mainly by the wealthy.

Long claims that in restating his tax return as they viewed it, IRS agents reduced his wages to $150 a month and denied him many of his deductions. In addition, he said, they threatened to seize his property if he didn't agree.

Amplification of the details must await a court case, but the basic dispute appears to be Long's decision as head of the corporation to set his own salary and then use it as a deduction on his corporate taxes.

And what about the threat of a jeopardy assessment, or seizure? "The last thing we try to ever do is seize property, levy a bank account or things like that. We do it only as a last resort," IRS said.

When the court acts to settle a complex social or ethical issue, the effect is almost always divisive, fragmenting. This is because the court appeals to so-called principles which it claims — often unconsciously to many — to find in the text of the Constitution. The political process, on the other hand, as manifested in the state and national legislatures, often or even usually has a reconciling effect. This is because the political process involves bargaining and, therefore, trade-offs and compromises. No segment of the national community gets everything it wants, but each gets enough to keep it part of the process.

Over a decade ago, the late Rev. John Courtney Murray, a well-known Jesuit and liberal theologian, published an influential book called "We Hold These Truths" in which he envisioned a pluralistic America, composed of diverse groups, diverse, yes, but agreeing on certain axioms which all Americans supposedly held in common. Murray, it became clear in subsequent years, seriously underestimated the power of modern secularism and positivism. And the abortion ruling would certainly seem to give the coup de grace to Murray's vision of a unified, pluralistic America.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments by the Pavement Plato:

Do you ever stop to think how much of your life is spent in performing rituals?

A wild animal lives largely by obeying his instincts, a human being by the rituals he follows.

Rituals are the little habits of conduct by which we meet the common occurrences of our existence. They govern us from dawn to dawn, from Monday through Sunday. They are helpful because they tell us what to do in most situations, but sometimes they also bore us half to death.

They become too patterned, too chorelike, and at times we yearn to break out of the confinement of rituals and do something wild, free and mildly insane. And, of course, at times most of us do.

Here are a few commonplace rituals:

Shaving, the most irksome task of any man's life.

Brushing your teeth.

Spraying something in your armpits so you won't smell like nature meant you to.

Telling a hospital patient he looks swell when he looks like hell.

Saying something nice about the hero of the occasion at a funeral, when your private opinion is that the world would have been better off if he had died ten years before.

Picking up bar and restaurant

checks for liberated women.

Laughing at the right time when the boss tells a joke, no matter whether you memorized the joke yourself when you were in high school.

Congratulating the pastor of your church on Sunday on the powerful sermon he preached that you never really listened to.

Going to functions where they have after dinner speeches.

Going to cocktail parties where everybody is either too clever or too pontifical.

Telling our innocent little children how they must behave if they want to grow up and be safe and happy — like us.

So we wear out our lives from birth to the tomb, performing this little ritual...that little ritual. What would happen if for a single day every person in the world ceased to go through any of his usual rituals whatsoever?

That's easy. We'd all be thrown in jail before nightfall. Without rituals, people get into nothing but trouble.

Education Budget Hit

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A cough represents one of the most common symptoms that may or may not be brought to the attention of the doctor.

A cough is frequently associated with any kind of upper respiratory infection. The common cold, the gripe, and the flu often leave in their wake a cough which may vary from simple irritation to one that is disquieting and distressing.

Patients often buy over-the-counter medicines in the hope that any one product, even those haphazardly chosen, will be the answer to their cough. In some instances, a cough is alleviated by these products. In others, the cough may be unaffected.

In order to better understand why a "shotgun" mixture of over-the-counter cough medicines should not routinely be used, the mechanism of a cough should be more clearly understood.

A cough means that there is some irritation along the respiratory airways, including the throat, the pharynx, the larynx, the bronchial tubes and the lungs.

Inflammation of the lining of the breathing apparatus, infection, irritation like tobacco smoke, harsh chemicals, and swelling of the lining by allergy may produce the cough. This entire reflex action is one of the most carefully designed protective mechanisms in the body.

When an irritant is present, anywhere along the air passages a signal is sent to a very specific point in the brain, the cough center. From here, further signals are sent to the lungs, the diaphragm and the muscles of the chest, telling them that an explosive cough is necessary to get rid of the offending irritant.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The merits of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Long's case against the Internal Revenue Service will have to be decided by the courts, but in the meantime he is giving them an irritating, frustrating and costly time of it.

It is only fair, says Long, a Bellevue, Wash., real estate man, because that same technique has become one of the specialties of the IRS and it shouldn't be so. He's out not only to prove his case but to restrain the IRS.

Ever since he and his wife, a 30-year-old graduate student who specializes in analyzing data, were informed by the IRS more than three years ago that they owed an additional $38,144 in taxes, they have been on the trail of the IRS.

"It's all we do," the Longs said in an interview. "It's bad to happen to us today or to you today but it is worse for it to happen to anybody tomorrow." And so they are determined to make a case for themselves and the public.

In pursuit of their goal they have already spent $10,000 of their own money in publicizing the case, in newspaper ads, in research, in trips to Washington, in postage for letters to others "clobbered by the IRS," and in digging information about the IRS from its own files.

Their research in IRS files had followed a court ruling in favor of the Longs last September that opened sections of the internal procedures manual to public scrutiny. The Longs had earlier been denied the information.

In their research, the Longs have already revealed IRS procedures and practices that could pose serious future problems, such as:

—In contested cases, the amount on the dollar settled for in different districts varied widely in 1971. How you fare may depend upon where you live. In Newark, N.J., settlements averaged 50 cents on the dollar; in Washington, 24.

—On average, settlements with

Some coughs are dry, hacking, and "non-productive." This means that no secretions are brought up.

Others are "productive" coughs, which means that mucus and pus, the result of an infection, must be cleared from the respiratory tract.

It is apparent, therefore, that different types of coughs. It must be apparent, too, that self-medication is not the ideal way to treat a persistent cough.

Even though many of the available products are excellent, the choice must be made more carefully than by the imprinted messages of advertisers.

Some coughs must be suppressed. Others must be stimulated. Sometimes it is necessary to "loosen" a cough. Other times it is necessary to "dry up" a cough.

In some cases, codeine, one of the ingredients in drugs purchased without a prescription, may be the wrong drug for the cough.

It is important to note that codeine, a narcotic, can in many states be purchased without a prescription. Drug addicts quickly learn the availability of such cough medicines and make their daily rounds of purchases to supply their daily needs.

A simple rule of safety is to ask a physician's advice. Often he can, even by telephone description, decide on a cough medicine that would be most effective.

individuals were for 34 cents on the dollar in 1971 compared to only 27 cents on the dollar for corporations.

Long is an outraged man. He claims the IRS as a matter of policy challenges many individual and small business returns, "not because there is a question of them being wrong but simply to obtain additional funds for the IRS."

In doing so, he claims, they use arbitrary interpretations of IRS rules and then attempt to deny the taxpayer access to those rules. They harass, and might even threaten jeopardy assessments, he says. That was so in his case, he adds.

Long, slight and graying at 56, owns, rents or manages duplex houses that were built mostly by his father. To do so, he has set up corporations.

As an officer in the corporations, he has for the past 12 years or so been paying himself $600 a month. In addition, he has been deducting such costs as insurance, telephone charges, subscriptions to financial publications and the like.

The IRS viewed two of these corporations as personal holding companies, which are subject to high taxes because they often are used, in the words of an IRS spokesman, "as incorporated pocketbooks," mainly by the wealthy.

Long claims that in restating his tax return as they viewed it, IRS agents reduced his wages to $150 a month and denied him many of his deductions. In addition, he said, they threatened to seize his property if he didn't agree.

Amplification of the details must await a court case, but the basic dispute appears to be Long's decision as head of the corporation to set his own salary and then use it as a deduction on his corporate taxes.

And what about the threat of a jeopardy assessment, or seizure? "The last thing we try to ever do is seize property, levy a bank account or things like that. We do it only as a last resort," IRS said.

Rhodes Future Hangs On Voters' Thoughts

By RICHARD BILOTTI
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—What did Ohio voters think they were voting on 19 years ago when more than a million of them approved a constitutional amendment changing the governor's term of office?

Did they think they had limited holding the office to eight years—two successive, four-year terms? Or did they think they were allowing an officeholder to hold several two successive, four-year terms, leave office, at least one term, then run again?

The answer to that question may well decide whether former Gov. James Rhodes can become the Republican candidate for the state's highest office in 1974.

In 1954, the state legislature approved a constitutional amendment that read "no person shall hold the office of governor for a period longer than two successive terms of four years." at the time the governor held office for as many two-year terms he could get elected.

However, when the question was written on the ballot it said the amendment would extend the term to four years and "limit the office of governor to two successive terms."

There is only a slight difference in wording, but it could be significant

Principal May Box Students

MIAMI (AP) — Confident that one of his students will relish the opportunity, grade school principal Dr. Von N. Beebe says he will take all comers in tonight's Florida Golden Gloves Championships.

Beebe, 32-year-old principal of Leroy D. Fienberg Elementary School in Miami Beach, is a contestant in the amateur boxing event's subnovice category — for fighters with zero to five fights experience.

The 165-pound teacher says he has been working out for a few weeks on a punching bag in preparation for his debut on, as he puts it, "my Walter Mitty thing."

But the problem is Beebe can't find an opponent his own age and says he's afraid the contest may wind up as principal against student.

"I'm sure there are a couple of my own students who'd like to have this opportunity to exchange blows," he mused.

Beebe, who is entered in the slugfest with about 200 other fighters, says he isn't a "health nut" but thinks the experience may be useful in a textbook he is writing.

because of a precedent setting Supreme Court decision of 1853. That decision said when a conflict between the farmers of the constitution and the people arises, what the people think should prevail.

The news media is one of the major sources of information for the voter and it appeared the papers picked up on what was written on the ballot.

The phrase "limit the office of governor to two successive terms" appears repeatedly in editorials run prior to the Nov. 2 election date.

The majority of papers encouraged voters to approve the amendment using the argument that a two-year term of office does not give an official enough time.

Editorial writers used different language to argue for the first part of the amendment.

When it came to the second part about two successive terms, almost all used the word "limit" instead of the amendment's own terminology of "for a period longer than."

The Akron Beacon Journal's editorial said "voting for the amendment would limit the total service of a governor to two successive terms of four years."

The Dayton Daily News said "a four-year governor has a chance to work out a longrange constructive program. Not too long, however, since the amendment would limit him to two consecutive terms."

"The change which should be approved extends from two years to four years the term of office...but limits the office of governor to two successive terms," the Toledo Blade told its readers.

The Cincinnati Enquirer recommended adoption of the amendment because it "provides a safeguard against entrenchment in the office of governor. It would limit governors to two terms of four years after January, 1959."

When Rhodes filed to run for the governor Secretary of State Ted Brown refused to accept his petitions. So Rhodes, who ironically was defeated for governor the same year the amendment was approved by incumbent Democrat Frank Lausche, went to the Supreme Court for interpretation.

The justices aren't saying what methods they will use in deciding the case, but voter thinking in 1954 may be difficult for the justices to figure out.

Radial Tire Future Appears Bright

NEW YORK (AP) — Radial tire sales will grow from 15 million in 1972 to 41 million in 1975, according to a projection by Alan R. Kerivan, vice president of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

"Of these 41 million radials, approximately six million will use fiber glass tire cord," he said.

The traditional automobile tire is called bias-ply. Bias - ply tires have their cords running at angles of about 35 degrees to the line of travel. On radial tires, the piles run at 90 degrees to the direction of travel, which is said to give much better performance to the tires.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return for the year ending 12-31-1972
Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. How can I tell if I'm eligible to use the short form 1040A?

A. Basically, the short form 1040A may be used if all your income was from wages, salaries, tips and not more than $200 in dividends and $200 in interest and you do not plan to itemize deductions.

If you receive the short form in the mail, it was sent to you based on the return you filed last year. If you did not receive a short form 1040A in the mail and want to use it, a copy may be obtained at any Internal Revenue office and most banks and post offices, or you may use the order blank in the form 1040 package to obtain a copy.

Q. Is every taxpayer who is eligible to use the short form 1040A required to do so?

A. No. Use of the short form is optional. If you had sizeable expenses for such items as medical and dental care, interest, taxes, contributions, alimony, child care, etc., it may be to your advantage to itemize deductions. This can only be done on Schedule A. of your Form 1040 and not on the short form.

A formula for determining whether or not you should itemize deductions is found in your tax form instructions.

Q. I should receive a refund when I file my Federal income tax return. Can I still designate $1 of my tax towards the Presidential Election Campaign Fund?

A. Yes. Every individual (other than a nonresident alien) may participate in the Presidential Election Campaign Fund if he has a tax liability of $1 or more ($2 or more for joint return filers).

In addition, completion of Form 4875 in your tax forms package to designate the check-off will not change any of the figures on your Form 1040 or 1040A.

Q. Have the filing requirements for older taxpayers been changed?

A. Yes. If you are unmarried and 65 or older, you do not have to file a return unless you have a gross income of $2,800 or more. For married persons filing a joint return, the filing requirement is $3,550 if either husband or wife is 65 or older, and $4,300 if both are 65 or older.

However, if you are self-employed, you must file a return if you had net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more, regardless of your age.

Q. I'm retired and eligible to receive the retirement income credit. Will the IRS compute it for me?

A. Yes. If you elect to have the IRS compute your tax and you have a retirement income credit, the IRS will also compute this for you. Just follow the directions in your tax form instructions.

Q. How do I go about ordering free IRS tax publications?

Q. Just fill in the order blank on the back of your tax forms package, choosing the form or free publication that you want from the list shown, and send it to the IRS office shown on the package.

Q. Are there any limits on how much you can deduct as a charitable contribution?

A. Yes, in general contributions to most charities, such as churches, educational organizations, hospitals, etc., may be deducted up to 50 percent of your adjusted gross income. However, contributions to certain private non-operating foundations, veterans organizations, fraternal societies, and cemetery organizations are limited to 20 percent of adjusted gross income. The organization itself can tell you which of the two categories it falls into.

There are also certain limitations on contributions of property, such as stock. For details, see IRS Publication 526, "Income Tax Deductions," available free from you IRS district office.

Final Vietnam USO Closes Doors

SAIGON (AP) — "The USO Is Closed."

The red, white and blue sign on the door spelled the end of an era for the hundreds of thousands of war-weary GIs who wandered inside looking for a hamburger or a friendly face.

After nearly 10 years of trying to provide a bit of America in an unfamiliar land of rice paddies and conical hats, the last USO in South Vietnam posted the notice today.

There was no music, no formal announcement, not even free chili dogs or milkshakes to mark the occasion. Just a few startled civilians and soldiers who came to have a snack, play pool or just hang around for a while.

"I don't believe it," said Sgt. Jack Rains of Miami, Fla. "I got down here after 10 months and it's closed! I guess that's the way things go."

Though all the food and entertainment facilities are closed, USO director Michelle M. Chalfont said the building will be open for information and stateside phone calls until all the American servicemen are out of South Vietnam March 28.

Mrs. Chalfont, whose parents live in Eau Claire, Wis., said the U.S. Command had asked the USO to close "to keep the troops out of the downtown Saigon area," where the two-story club is located.

In recent daily bulletins, the Command has warned that assaults and armed robberies in Saigon are occurring at "an alarming rate." The Command is urging American personnel "to stay out of Saigon unless on official business and not to travel in groups of less than three persons."

A handful of servicemen showed up at the club today, some for its last sightseeing tour of the city and cruise down the Saigon River.

"They told me this was the last day," said Spec. 5 Paul Fulton of Atlantic City, N.J., as he shot a final game of pool before taking off on the cruise. "That's too bad, because it's a pretty nice place—a lot nicer than the USOs in the states."

"Are we the last patrons?" asked Sgt. Frank C. Wainright of Alexandria, La. "I think it's awful. Well, as they say, 'We'll miss you beacoup!'"

The first USO in South Vietnam opened in April 1963 in the heart of downtown Saigon. At the height of American involvement in the war, in 1969, between 75,000 and 100,000 servicemen trooped through its doors every month, Mrs. Chalfont said.

Link Seen In Boston Murders

BOSTON (AP) — Investigators say they are agreed there are enough similarities in the murders of eight Boston-area women since last summer to warrant an effort to tie the deaths to a single killer.

State Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn said after a meeting with more than 20 law enforcement officials and prosecutors here Tuesday that the victims have "common denominators" in their lives which prompt further investigation.

Middlesex County Dist. Atty. John J. Droney announced plans to seek a murder indictment this month in the death of Damaris Syngie Gillispie, a Boston University student whose nude body was found Saturday in a wooded area at Billerica, about 20 miles north of Boston.

Miss Gillispie, 22, of Bedford Hills, N.Y., disappeared from her Cambridge apartment last Nov. 29.

Quinn said all eight victims were women in their 20s, all had similar life styles, all were strangled and all were described by friends as habitual hitchhikers.

Part of Droney's case in the Gillispie death is expected to be voiceprints the district attorney wants taken of a man who is currently in custody on an unrelated charge, the Boston Globe reported.

The newspaper said Droney wants to compare the voiceprints with recordings of several ransom calls made to the Gillispie girl's family.

The president, Mrs. Winfred Dumm, led with the prayer and song, "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us." Cards were signed to be sent to five shut-ins of the society. A family night was planned for February.

The program by Mrs. Mervin McClelland had as its subject, "God Loves Us." All members joined in the hymn singing "What a Friend We Have In Jesus."

Refreshments were served to 12 members on tables decorated with hearts and patriotic designs by the hostesses.

Mrs. Hazel McNeal was taken to Berger Hospital last week following a heart attack and the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Karr entertained with a supper Sunday on the birthday of their daughter, Mrs. Lois Swebston. Joining them were Mr. and Mrs. John Karr and son Stacey and Mrs. Swebston and daughter Lesley.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny DeLong Jr. had as their Sunday dinner guests Miss Florence Stahr and Miss Mary Frances Poling and their son, Brian DeLong.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Taylor were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Harmon of Orient, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Chilcote, Mrs. Joan Hedderson and children Cindy, Jeffrey and Marcia.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Clark were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mrs. Thomas Kyle of Circleville.

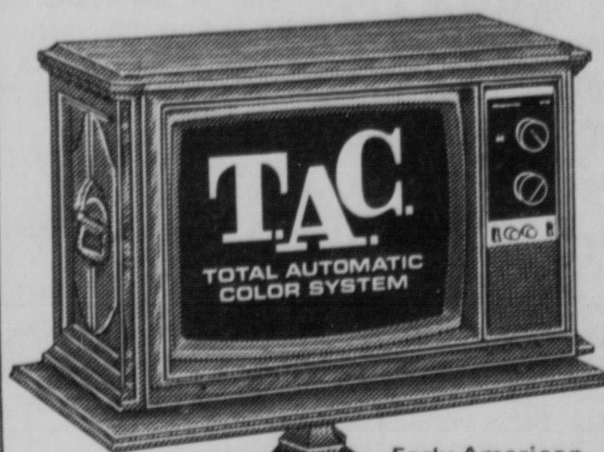

In total darkness the healthy human eye has the extraordinary capability of seeing the light of a single candle for a distance of up to 14 miles, according to the Society for Visual Care. To insure the best possible visual perception, the society advocates regular and thorough professional eye examinations.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return
Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. How can I tell if I'm eligible to use the short form 1040A?

A. Basically, the short form 1040A may be used if all your income was from wages, salaries, tips and not more than $200 in dividends and $200 in interest and you do not plan to itemize deductions.

If you receive the short form in the mail, it was sent to you based on the return you filed last year. If you did not receive a short form 1040A in the mail and want to use it, a copy may be obtained at any Internal Revenue office and most banks and post offices, or you may use the order blank in the form 1040 package to obtain a copy.

Q. Is every taxpayer who is eligible to use the short form 1040A required to do so?

A. No. Use of the short form is optional. If you had sizeable expenses for such items as medical and dental care, interest, taxes, contributions, alimony, child care, etc., it may be to your advantage to itemize deductions. This can only be done on Schedule A. of your Form 1040 and not on the short form.

A formula for determining whether or not you should itemize deductions is found in your tax form instructions.

Q. I should receive a refund when I file my Federal income tax return. Can I still designate $1 of my tax towards the Presidential Election Campaign Fund?

A. Yes. Every individual (other than a nonresident alien) may participate in the Presidential Election Campaign Fund if he has a tax liability of $1 or more ($2 or more for joint return filers).

In addition, completion of Form 4875 in your tax forms package to designate the check-off will not change any of the figures on your Form 1040 or 1040A.

Q. Have the filing requirements for older taxpayers been changed?

A. Yes. If you are unmarried and 65 or older, you do not have to file a return unless you have a gross income of $2,800 or more. For married persons filing a joint return, the filing requirement is $3,550 if either husband or wife is 65 or older, and $4,300 if both are 65 or older.

However, if you are self-employed, you must file a return if you had net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more, regardless of your age.

Q. I'm retired and eligible to receive the retirement income credit. Will the IRS compute it for me?

A. Yes. If you elect to have the IRS compute your tax and you have a retirement income credit, the IRS will also compute this for you. Just follow the directions in your tax form instructions.

Q. How do I go about ordering free IRS tax publications?

Q. Just fill in the order blank on the back of your tax forms package, choosing the form or free publication that you want from the list shown, and send it to the IRS office shown on the package.

Q. Are there any limits on how much you can deduct as a charitable contribution?

A. Yes, in general contributions to most charities, such as churches, educational organizations, hospitals, etc., may be deducted up to 50 percent of your adjusted gross income. However, contributions to certain private non-operating foundations, veterans organizations, fraternal societies, and cemetery organizations are limited to 20 per cent of adjusted gross income. The organization itself can tell you which of the two categories it falls into.

There are also certain limitations on contributions of property, such as stock. For details, see IRS Publication 526, "Income Tax Deductions," available free from your IRS district office.

Plan Food Preparation For POWs

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Readjusting former American prisoners of war to the American diet is going to be "pretty tricky," a Navy dietitian says.

"They're going to be amazed at what we're eating now. We have a lot more convenience foods, frozen and packaged, and there are a lot more fad foods," Lt. Georgiana Banellis of Memphis Air Station said Tuesday.

The 25-year-old Logan, Utah, native will be in charge of reconstructing diets for a group of POWs from mid-South states who are scheduled to stay at the base hospital.

"They've missed all this stuff, this fad food. They're going to have it rough adjusting to the United States again. They may not remember what the food tastes like," she said.

"We will give them 1,200 calories intake and six light meals a day to begin. The main criteria is that you don't push them into it."

"We might start with one or two of the foods they particularly like and build from there. They will get meats, liver, dark green vegetables, oranges, tomatoes, and other foods with plenty of iron and vitamin C...."

"Food might be a shock to the body so we'll begin without spicy, high-fat foods that are harder to digest."

Final Vietnam USO Closes Doors

SAIGON (AP) — "The USO Is Closed."

The red, white and blue sign on the door spelled the end of an era for the hundreds of thousands of war-weary GIs who wandered inside looking for a hamburger or a friendly face.

After nearly 10 years of trying to provide a bit of America in an unfamiliar land of rice paddies and conical hats, the last USO in South Vietnam posted the notice today.

There was no music, no formal announcement, not even free chili dogs or milkshakes to mark the occasion. Just a few startled civilians and soldiers who came to have a snack, play pool or just hang around for a while.

"I don't believe it," said Sgt. Jack Rains of Miami, Fla. "I got down here after 10 months and it's closed! I guess that's the way things go."

Though all the food and entertainment facilities are closed, USO director Michelle M. Chalfont said the building will be open for information and stateside phone calls until all the American servicemen are out of South Vietnam March 28.

Mrs. Chalfont, whose parents live in Eau Claire, Wis., said the U.S. Command had asked the USO to close "to keep the troops out of the downtown Saigon area," where the two-story club is located.

In recent daily bulletins, the Command has warned that assaults and armed robberies in Saigon are occurring at "an alarming rate." The Command is urging American personnel "to stay out of Saigon unless on official business and not to travel in groups of less than three persons."

A handful of servicemen showed up at the club today, some for its last sightseeing tour of the city and cruise down the Saigon River.

"They told me this was the last day," said Spec. 5 Paul Fulton of Atlantic City, N.J., as he shot a final game of pool before taking off on the cruise. "That's too bad, because it's a pretty nice place—a lot nicer than the USOs in the states."

"Are we the last patrons?" asked Sgt. Frank C. Wainright of Alexandria, La. "I think it's awful. Well, as they say, 'We'll miss you beaucoup!'"

The first USO in South Vietnam opened in April 1963 in the heart of downtown Saigon. At the height of American involvement in the war, in 1969, between 75,000 and 100,000 servicemen trooped through its doors every month, Mrs. Chalfont said.

Sneek-A-Peek

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

At the risk of sounding like a carnival barker, may I remind you that books can be real, honest-to-goodness, gen-u-ine FUN! In fact, books are a wonderful combination of fun and education. Some of the books we have are as much fun as a day at the zoo. (I know many parents who would probably argue that a day at the zoo isn't any fun at all, but I am thinking from a child's viewpoint now.) Consider, for example, the fun involved in these following books.

"Henry the Castaway" is a picture book by Mark Taylor, illustrated by Graham Booth. Henry is an adventurous little fellow who sets out on foot to explore uncharted seas (the stream behind his house). As he fights his way through a dense jungle (a farmer's field), he is threatened by fierce beasts (cows and frogs). Henry finally finds a canoe, and ends up stranded on a small island in the stream where he stays until his parents come to rescue him. Of course, they are glad to find him safe, but they are much more tolerant about his travels and adventures than most parents would be.

In "Is This Baby Dinosaur?" Millicent E. Selsam has managed, through blown-up photographs, to make every-day objects look like something else. In her pictures, lentil beans look like pebbles, dewdrops look like Christmas decorations, and an owl's eyes look like fried eggs. The baby dinosaur turns out to be a baby pelican.

"A Twister of Twists, A Tangle of Tongues" treats these tongue twisters told by Alvin Schwartz. This thoroughly thoughtful tangle of tongue twisters may be troublesome to those who think their tongue too tuned to be twisted!

"We Love Your Beatles", written and illustrated by Margaret Sutton, tells about John, George, Paul, and Ringo, from their beginning in Liverpool to the height of their fame. Miss Sutton makes the Beatles' story sound like a fairy tale, complete with a happy ending.

"Gobble, Growl, Grunt" and "Crash Bang Boom", both by Peter Spier, deal with the subject of sounds. The first portrays over six hundred animals and shows the sound that each makes. The second deals with machine and people sounds, categorized by location. There is no story here; just Peter Spier's marvelous illustrations, and all kinds of noises.

"How To Make Elephant Bread" by Kathy Mandry and Joe Toto is a cook book for the younger set. Each page has an easy-to-make recipe for a children's treat, such as Apple Swamp, Bear Berries, or Monkey Business, along with a nonsense picture. With this book and a few hours in the kitchen, any little girl could make a colossal mess.

Now, then, how much more fun could you possibly ask for?

Peron Visits Romania

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Juan D. Peron, the former president of Argentina, has arrived here for what is described as an informal cultural visit.

State May Give $700,000 To 7 Major Ohio Airports

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Transportation Director J. Phillip Richley says the state may contribute $700,000 to seven Ohio airports to offset the cost of safety and anti-hijacking measures.

Richley said money for the program would come from the $5 million in federal revenuesharing funds that Gov. John Gilligan has asked the legislature to allocate to the Transportation Department.

If approved, the funds would be used for safety standard items such as fire and crash rescue equipment and other fire-fighting tools and anti-hijacking devices.

Six state airports mentioned as possible recipients of the funds are Cleveland Hopkins, Port Columbus, Toledo Express, Dayton Cox, Youngstown Municipal and Akron-Canton Airport.

The other airport to be included was uncertain, since Cincinnati's largest airport is located in Covington, Ky. The location of the Covington airport disqualifies it from receiving aid, Richley said.

Richley said the state aid became necessary after the Federal Aviation Administration instituted new safety regulations, and after security requirements were mandated by a recent Presidential order.

All carrier airports are required by the Federal Airway Development Act of 1970 to meet certain safety standards if they are to continue unrestricted operation after May 1, 1973.

Airports that do not meet the new standards will be issued FAA operating certificates permitting them to operate only within the limits of what the FAA considers safe.

An airport operating on a restricted basis will be able to resume full operations when the standards are met.

In addition, the airports must now assume the major responsibility for anti-hijacking efforts, previously the responsibility of air carriers.

Cold Front Brings Snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A cold front stretching from southern Texas to the eastern Great Lakes triggered snow, sleet, rain and freezing drizzle over much of the nation today as temperatures dropped into the teens as far south as the Texas Panhandle.

Thunderstorms dumped heavy rains on Arkansas and Tennessee during the night. Jonesboro, Ark. soaked up nearly 2 and Pine Bluff, Ar., 1.4 inches. An inch of snow accumulated in Pueblo, Colo.; Lubbock, Tex.; Flint, Mich., and Toledo and Dayton, Ohio.

Snow whitened the region from the eastern Great Lakes southward, turning to rain over Kentucky. Drizzle and rain fell from Alabama along the west slopes of the Appalachians into northern New England.

A few scattered showers remained from central California to southwest Oregon and skies were mostly cloudy over the Great Basin. Clear skies prevailed over the northern Plains and the western Great Lakes region.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 11 at International Falls, Minn., to 67 at Corpus Christi, Tex.

Elderly Nurse Appeals Slash In VA Benefits

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Veterans Administration will hold a hearing for an 80-year-old Army nurse whose VA benefits were cut after her Social Security benefits were increased.

The VA agreed to the hearing after the woman, Elice C. Kermath, filed a class-action suit in U.S. District Court seeking to get the VA decision overturned. Judge Thomas Lambros issued a temporary injunction against the VA and ordered the agency to restore Mrs. Kermath's pension payments pending the outcome of the suit.

Lambros said he would lift the order once the VA hearing is arranged, but that since the suit affects all veterans receiving benefits, it would continue to determine whether a federal agency can terminate benefits to an individual without providing administrative hearing and appeal procedures.

VA regulations do not require the agency to notify recipients if their payments are being reduced or terminated.

Trained Watchdog Bites Policeman

CEDAR LAKE, Ind. (AP) — A 100-pound trained watchdog ignored two burglars who looted his master's place of business, then bit a policeman called to investigate.

Marvin Mann, owner of a service station along U.S. 41 here, said the dog was running around outside when he arrived early Tuesday morning and ignored the burglars as they fled from the rear of the building.

Patrolman Edgar Prater was treated for bites and scratches after the dog jumped him when he came to investigate.

Several tools, a stereo player and tapes were taken from the station.

Hexachlorophene Subs Not Safe, Panel Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The panel which recommended the virtual ban on hexachlorophene in over-the-counter products now says that existing evidence does not show chemical substitutes for hexachlorophene to be safe in deodorant toilet soaps.

"All of these chemicals are absorbed through intact human skin in measureable or significant amounts and all of them at some level produce damage to internal organs," said the panel of doctors appointed by the Food and Drug Administration.

"The amount that could be used safely for a lifetime has not been established."

The panel reached its conclusion in October as part of a review of the safety and effectiveness of all non-prescription uses of antimicrobials, germ killers.

The panel has yet to furnish the FDA with its final report, and soap makers say they are confident they can demonstrate the safety of their products before the panel finishes its deliberations.

The panel's judgment in September that use of hexachlorophene should be severely restricted was followed within days by the FDA ban.

In the case of the remaining germ killers, the agency is waiting for the panel's final report which could be ready in a few weeks or a few months, an FDA spokesman said.

The spokesman said the agency does not consider any danger posed by substitutes for hexachlorophene to be the same as those from hexachlorophene itself.

Nearly 40 French infants died from talcum powder which contained accidentally high levels of hexachlorophene. U.S. studies had tied the chemical to brain damage in premature infants.

Cold Front Brings Snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cold front stretching from southern Texas to the eastern Great Lakes triggered snow, sleet, rain and freezing drizzle over much of the nation today as temperatures dropped into the teens as far south as the Texas Panhandle.

Thunderstorms dumped heavy rains on Arkansas and Tennessee during the night. Jonesboro, Ark. soaked up nearly 2 and Pine Bluff, Ar., 1.4 inches. An inch of snow accumulated in Pueblo, Colo.; Lubbock, Tex.; Flint, Mich., and Toledo and Dayton, Ohio.

Snow whitened the region from the eastern Great Lakes southward, turning to rain over Kentucky. Drizzle and rain fell from Alabama along the west slopes of the Appalachians into northern New England.

A few scattered showers remained from central California to southwest Oregon and skies were mostly cloudy over the Great Basin. Clear skies prevailed over the northern Plains and the western Great Lakes region.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 11 at International Falls., Minn., to 67 at Corpus Christi, Tex.

Elderly Nurse Appeals Slash In VA Benefits

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Veterans Administration will hold a hearing for an 80-year-old Army nurse whose VA benefits were cut after her Social Security benefits were increased.

The VA agreed to the hearing after the woman, Elice C. Kermath, filed a class-action suit in U.S. District Court seeking to get the VA decision overturned. Judge Thomas Lambros issued a temporary injunction against the VA and ordered the agency to restore Mrs. Kermath's pension payments pending the outcome of the suit.

Lambros said he would lift the order once the VA hearing is arranged, but that since the suit affects all veterans receiving benefits, it would continue to determine whether a federal agency can terminate benefits to an individual without providing administrative hearing and appeal procedures.

VA regulations do not require the agency to notify recipients if payments are being reduced or terminated.

Trained Watchdog Bites Policeman

CEDAR LAKE, Ind. (AP) — A 100-pound trained watchdog ignored two burglars who looted his master's place of business, then bit a policeman called to investigate.

Marvin Mann, owner of a service station along U.S. 41 here, said the dog was running around outside when he arrived early Tuesday morning and ignored the burglars as they fled from the rear of the building.

Patrolman Edgar Prater was treated for bites and scratches after the dog jumped him when he came to investigate.

Several tools, a stereo player and tapes were taken from the station.

Stunned Texas Town Counts 7 Dead In Bus-Train Crash

LITTLEFIELD, Tex. (AP) — "Everybody in the bus screamed that the train was coming," a young survivor said in describing the final moments of horror before a freight train rammed into a school bus. Seven were killed, 17 were injured.

Police Chief James Cox said after the accident which stunned this Texas Panhandle community of 7,000 on Tuesday that the Sante Fe freight train was going 58 miles an hour when it slammed into the rear of the bus which was carrying 29 persons.

"The train hit the left rear side of the bus near the wheels and ripped it off," he said.

C.O. Heinrich, a Santa Fe employee, said red signal lights at the rail-highway crossing where the accident occurred were working and that all warning signs were visible.

The driver, Artis Johnson, 68, was among the injured.

Most of the dead and the injured were from Fieldton, a small, nearby farming community from which children are bused to the four schools in Littlefield.

Jesse Diaz, 15, said he was sitting in the middle of the bus when it stopped at a rail crossing on U.S. 385 just four blocks from the Littlefield business district.

"Then it went on," the boy said. "I saw the train coming in before the bus started after it stopped. Anita Martinez (one of the victims) screamed at Mr. Johnson to stop."

Raul Ortiz, 11, said he saw the train coming.

"When the bus stopped, everybody yelled that the train was coming. Everybody yelled and turned. He (the driver) tried to make it across."

Mrs. Jean Patterson, a substitute bus driver who had stopped her vehicle behind Johnson's, said:

"He pulled up there and stopped. Then he kept creeping across the tracks and all of a sudden the train came up from behind the depot."

Mrs. Patterson, whose children ride the Littlefield school buses, said she crawled underneath the boxcars when the train stopped.

"At first I thought my own kids were in that bus," she said, "but they had gone in the first one. A little girl was crying and saying, 'That's my brother.' And I could see that the kid was dead."

Anita Martinez was a school dropout who had decided to return to school. Four of her brothers were among the injured.

Answers To Questions About Social Security

Q. I am getting social security student benefits and I will be 22 in March. Will the recent social security changes affect my benefits in any way?

A. Yes. Instead of ending with the month in which you reach 22, if you are a full-time student and you have not completed the requirements for, or received a bachelors degree from, a 4-year college or university, your benefits will continue under the new law through the end of the quarter or semester in which you reach age 22. If your school is not operated on a quarter or semester basis, benefits can continue through the end of the course in which you are enrolled when you reach 22 or, if earlier, through the end of the second month following the month you reach 22.

Q. I'll soon be 62 and plan to quit work then and retire. I have raised my two grandchildren since they were babies. Now they're both in grade school. Will they be able to get social security checks on my record when I start getting monthly benefits?

A. Possibly. Under recent changes in the social security law, grandchildren can get monthly checks based on a grandparent's earnings record if certain conditions are met. You should file a claim for benefits for them at any social security office and receive a formal determination on the matter.

This can be done when you apply for your retirement benefits.

Q. I get monthly social security checks as a disabled widow, and I just started working at a part-time job. I heard that disabled people are allowed to work and test their ability to work for several months before their checks stop. Does this trial work period apply to me, too?

A. No. Since you receive disabled widow's benefits, the trial work period doesn't apply to you. The trial work period only applies to disabled workers who get monthly disability benefits. You should report to social security that you are working. If your work isn't considered to be a substantial gainful activity, your widow's checks may still continue.

Q. My brother has been getting monthly disability payments from social security since 1968. I recently read in the paper that disabled people under 65 will soon be able to get Medicare. Is this true?

A. It is true that people under 65 getting social security disability payments will soon be eligible for Medicare coverage. Starting in July of this year, your brother and other disabled people who have been getting social security disability benefits for at least two years will be eligible for Medicare.

Blood Vessel 'Spot Welding' Fights Diabetic Eye Damage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A nationwide study of 1,800 persons is being set up to find out whether "spot welding" of blood vessels in the eye helps to prevent the eye damage of advanced diabetes.

Sixteen clinical centers across the country are to enroll 100 to 150 diabetics each for the five-year study. All will be volunteers in a study of the most rapidly growing cause of blindness.

A key feature of the planned study is that only one eye of each patient will be treated. And the choice of which eye is to be treated will be done at random to assure objectivity, scientists said.

If in the course of the study it becomes apparent that very good or very bad results are being produced, the treatment will be changed, according to the researchers designing the study.

The study was described Tuesday to a science writers seminar on ophthalmology by Dr. Genell Knatterud, a biostatistician at the University of Maryland, the coordinating center for the study.

The seminar was sponsored by Research to Prevent Blindness Inc., a national research foundation based in New York.

The eye disease to be studied is called diabetic retinopathy, a major complication of diabetes. In 1930, it caused less than one per cent of all new cases of blindness in the United States. Now it is considered responsible for more than 15 per cent of all new cases of blindness.

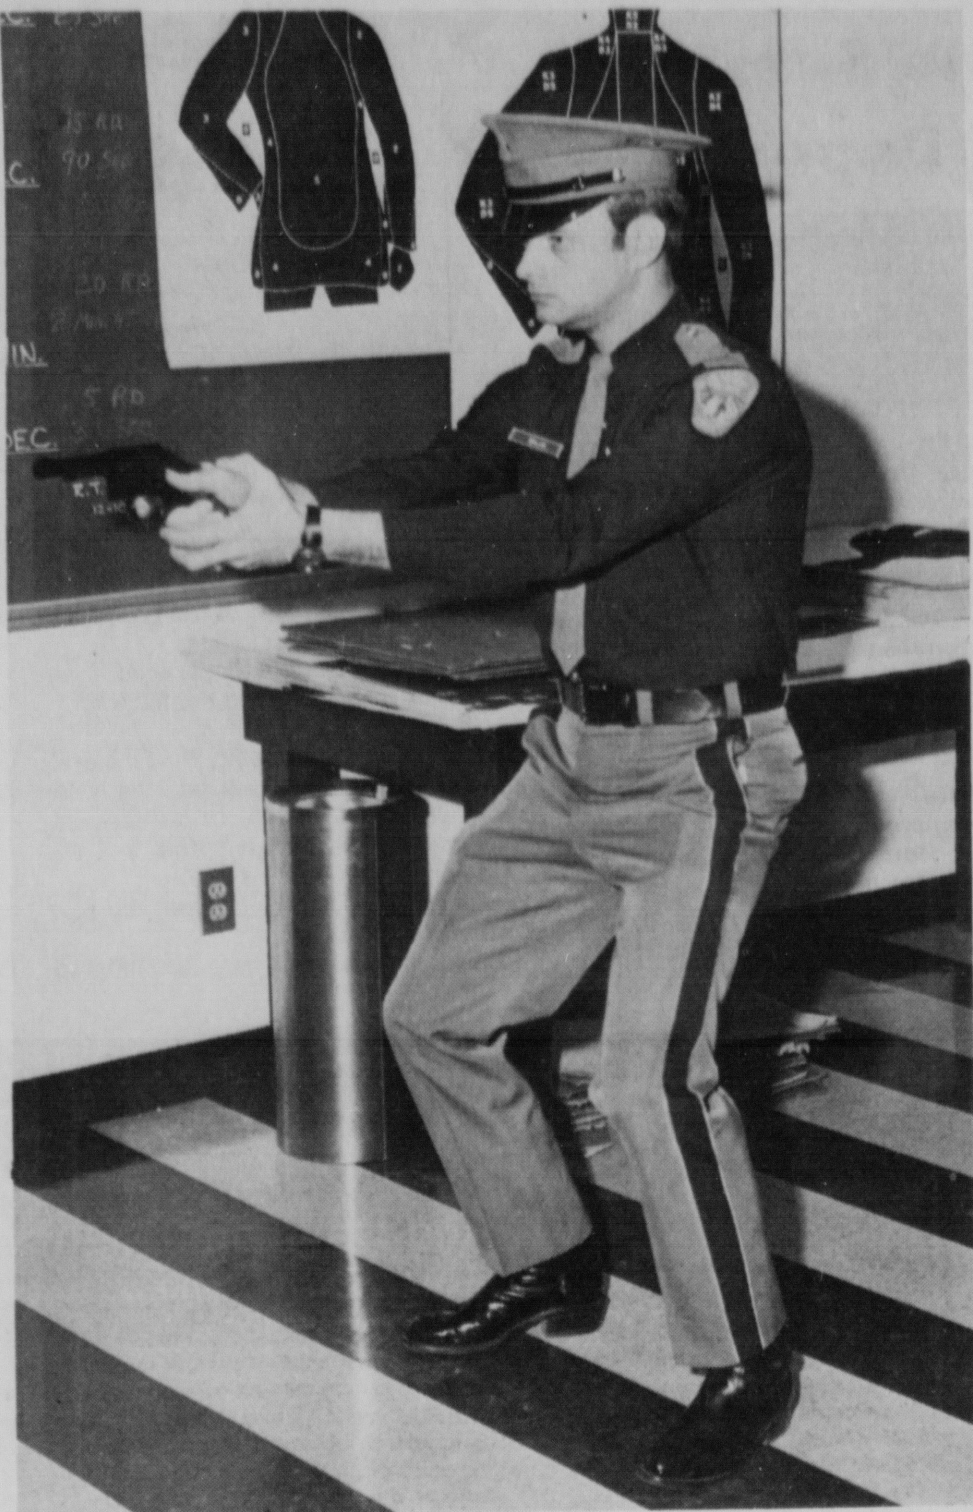

Two methods of treatment will be tested, both of them including the use of light beams to coagulate the ballooning or bursting blood vessels in the retina that mark the disease.

Old Sailing Ship May Put To Sea

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The old square-rigger Star of India may put to sea again briefly in June — under full sail for the first time in 50 years.

The remodeled 110-year-old sailing ship will make a short trip off the Southern California coast in order to be photographed, said Capt. Kenneth T. Reynard, the vessel's skipper.

The Star of India was launched in 1863 under the British flag at the Isle of Man. The merchantman was retired in 1923 and turned into a dockside museum.

Communists Poll Big French Vote

PARIS (AP) — The opposition Communist-Socialist alliance polled 47 per cent of the votes and the government coalition 36 per cent in the latest survey on French voting intentions in national elections next month.

The survey, prepared for today's edition of Le Figaro, puts the Gaullist majority two points below its showing in the last poll published by the newspaper. The leftist coalition rose by one point.

The shifts were less than those recorded in a poll commissioned by the newspaper L'Aurore last week. It showed the left gaining four points to 47 per cent and the government losing six to 37 per cent.

Answers To Questions About Social Security

Q. I am getting social security student benefits and I will be 22 in March. Will the recent social security changes affect my benefits in any way?

A. Yes. Instead of ending with the month in which you reach 22, if you are a full-time student and you have not completed the requirements for, or received a bachelors degree from, a 4-year college or university, your benefits will continue under the new law through the end of the quarter or semester in which you reach age 22. If your school is not operated on a quarter or semester basis, benefits can continue through the end of the course in which you are enrolled when you reach 22 or, if earlier, through the end of the second month following the month you reach 22.

Q. I'll soon be 62 and plan to quit work then and retire. I have raised my two grandchildren since they were babies. Now they're both in grade school. Will they be able to get social security checks on my record when I start getting monthly benefits?

A. Possibly. Under recent changes in the social security law, grandchildren can get monthly checks based on a grandparent's earnings record if certain conditions are met. You should file a claim for benefits for them at any social security office and receive a formal determination on the matter.

This can be done when you apply for your retirement benefits.

Q. I get monthly social security checks as a disabled widow, and I just started working at a part-time job. I heard that disabled people are allowed to work and test their ability to work for several months before their checks stop. Does this trial work period apply to me, too?

A. No. Since you receive disabled widow's benefits, the trial work period doesn't apply to you. the trial work period only applies to disabled workers who get monthly disability benefits. You should report to social security that you are working. If your work isn't considered to be a substantial gainful activity, your widow's checks may still continue.

Q. My brother has been getting monthly disability payments from social security since 1968. I recently read in the paper that disabled people under 65 will soon be able to get Medicare. Is this true?

A. It is true that people under 65 getting social security disability payments will soon be eligible for Medicare coverage. Starting in July of this year, your brother and other disabled people who have been getting social security disability benefits for at least two years will be eligible for Medicare.

Blood Vessel 'Spot Welding' Fights Diabetic Eye Damage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A nationwide study of 1,800 persons is being set up to find out whether "spot welding" of blood vessels in the eye helps to prevent the eye damage of advanced diabetes.

Sixteen clinical centers across the country are to enroll 100 to 150 diabetics each for the five-year study. All will be volunteers in a study of the most rapidly growing cause of blindness.

A key feature of the planned study is that only one eye of each patient will be treated. And the choice of which eye is to be treated will be done at random to assure objectivity, scientists said.

If in the course of the study it becomes apparent that very good or very bad results are being produced, the treatment will be changed, according to the researchers designing the study.

The study was described Tuesday to a science writers seminar on ophthalmology by Dr. Genell Knatterud, a biostatistician at the University of Maryland, the coordinating center for the study.

The seminar was sponsored by Research to Prevent Blindness Inc., a national research foundation based in New York.

The eye disease to be studied is called diabetic retinopathy, a major complication of diabetes. In 1930, it caused less than one per cent of all new cases of blindness in the United States. Now it is considered responsible for more than 15 per cent of all new cases of blindness.

Two methods of treatment will be tested, both of them including the use of light beams to coagulate the ballooning or bursting blood vessels in the retina that mark the disease.

Law Libraries

Lose Fund Bid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that mayors' courts do not have to pay part of their fines and bond forfeitures into county law library associations.

The court ruled unanimously in a case in which the Greenville Law Library Association sought to require the fees from cities and villages in Darke County.

The association won its case in the common pleas and appellate courts, but the Supreme Court reversed. It said in part that code sections requiring part of the fees be paid to library associations "refer to municipal courts, and does not include police courts or mayors' courts."

Minesweeping Action Set Before March

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — U.S. helicopters could begin sweeping mines from North Vietnamese harbors and rivers by the end of the month, a task group commander of Operation End Sweep indicated today. U.S. minesweeping ships may start the job sooner.

Marine and Navy helicopter crewmen have been training for a week at the Navy's mountain-ringed base here at Subic Bay, and Capt. Felix S. Vecchione told a news conference today the training takes about a month.

Rear Adm. Brian McCauley, the commander of Operation End Sweep, is now in Haiphong working out plans for sweeping the mines U.S. planes planted in North Vietnam's rivers and harbors last year. A protocol to the Vietnam peace agreement calls for the United States to render the mines harmless.

Seven minesweeping ships also will be used. Four are already in waters off North Vietnam making sure that an ocean anchorage is clear for the task force's command and supply ships. They could begin clearing the coastal waters as soon as McCauley completes his talks with the North Vietnamese, officers said.

But much of the sweeping will be done by the helicopters, and most of the mines are to be blown up. Vecchione said he hopes the operation can be concluded without casualties.

Vecchione would not say how many mines had been dropped into North Vietnam's waters although this information is being supplied to Hanoi in accordance with the cease-fire agreement. But he said the sweeping probably would take "a long time."

Law Enforcement

Funds Received

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration has given Ohio $11 million as part of the state's 1973 Omnibus Crime Control Allocation, David Sweet, Ohio Economic and Community Development director, said Wednesday.

The money will be used for the continuation of criminal justice programs and for correctional facilities and programs, according to Sweet.

Sweet said that chances appear good that the state will get nearly $28 million that his department requested from the federal enforcement administration.

Teacher Residency Suit Is Returned

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A suit against a residency requirement for new teachers in the Cincinnati school district has been returned to Hamilton County Common Pleas Court by the U.S. District Court.

The Cincinnati Teachers Association originally challenged the regulation in the state court charging it deprives pupils of the best available teachers and discriminates against suburban teacher candidates.

Project Signs

Everything is in readiness for the illage street signs to be erected and weather permitting the task will be undertaken this Saturday. Volunteers to do the job is the order of the day and it is hoped that a goodly number of men and young men (teen-agers, etc) will be at Smiley's garage at 9 a.m. Saturday morning to get the job done. If you anticipate helping on this very worthwhile project please contact either Harvey Looney (986-2275) or Robert Metzger (986-2091) or just plain be there at the appointed hour. However it would be nice if the two men knew whom to count on. Also, any one desiring to contribute to the cause of paying for the signs may do so by sending to Doris Reynolds, Sorosis treasurer, Williamsport, Ohio 43164.

It is quite exciting to be a part of this sorely needed village improvement. Many thanks are to be extended to Sorosis organization and their president Annabelle (Mrs. William) Rhinesmith for initiating this worthy venture. The cost will be in the neighborhood of approximately $600 and since Sorosis does not ever have this large a treasury and because they sincerely felt it should be a community project that is the reason for approaching all local businesses and other organizations for contributions as well as welcoming donations from individuals. The committee, Mary (Mrs. Carl) Gearheart, Margene (Mrs. Harvey) Looney and Frances (Mrs. Harold) Fry are now hopeful of the future project of establishing house numbers. They are fortunate to have a map from the files of the late Ernie Hill that should provide helpful information.

The flu bug continues to fell its victims and some of the latest on the list are Bunny and Joyce Stevens, LuAnn Howell, Mindy Picklesimer and her grandmother Betty Cox who had the misfortune to fall out of bed and suffer broken ribs, too.

Rushed to the hospital quite ill in the wee hours of the Sunday a.m. is one of nicest people it is my privilege to know, Mrs. Walter (Elsie) Wright. She is a patient at Berger Hospital in Room 110 and her many friends wish her a speedy and complete recovery to good health.

Helen (Mrs. Paul) Whitesed who underwent surgery a few weeks ago had returned to her bus driving job this week but was taken ill and will not be able to be on the route for several days. Just listen to those moans and groans from her passengers.

The beautiful weekend weather was made even more so for Mrs. Fannie Follrod since her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Clark Bush of Dayton spent Saturday and Sunday with her.

Difficult situations seems to come in bunches and so it has been for our own Rev. Dick Crosby at the United Methodist Church. First his father, Mr. Londo Crosby was seriously ill and hospitalized. He has now been discharged to his home. Right on the heels of this came the serious illness of Rev. Crosby's daughter, Sylvia Phillips. She is a patient at Paulding Co. Hospital, Paulding, Ohio. Her two little ones are being cared for by grandmother Crosby (Marybelle) who went to the Phillips home last week. As if this isn't enough, Mrs. Londo Crosby fell and was a bit "laid up". May the dark clouds of distress roll away sooner than soon and nothing but bright sunny days be in store for the Crosby family.

Little girl friends have found a special delight in sleeping overnight with each other since time immemorial and that's how it was when Amy Easterday overnighted Saturday with Sheryl Cox at the home of her grandparents, Harry and Cora Young and her mommie Louise Cox.

On a recent Wednesday evening when there was no school the next day, Amy had as her overnights Brenda and Dena Galloway and Sheryl Horch (it was an over sight that it had not been printed before). They do like to see their names in the newspaper. Another time Amy was the guest of Vicki Buskirk.

MYF Presents

making all the arrangements for the appearance of the King's Way Singers (a United Methodist ministry from OSU) on Sunday Feb. 25 at 4 p.m. at the Williamsport United Methodist Church. Everyone is cordially invited to attend and enjoy this group. There is no charge, however, plates for a love offering will be available for those who might wish to make a contribution. A time for fellowship and light refreshments will be in the annex afterwards.

Home from a truly enjoyable visit at Haines City, Florida with affable hosts Harry and Emma Puffinbarger are Harry, Jr. (Booge) and Thelma Puffinbarger and her sister Mrs. Helen See. The senior Puffinbargers treated their guests to all the royal tourist attractions and they do know them all. For those of you who have been in the area the names will bring a bit of nostalgia and those who haven't it can't help but bring on some wishful thinking. On the itinerary we find the Citrus Candy factor, Waverly Citrus Plant, The Great Masterpiece, Spook Hill Singing Towers, Donald Duck Citrus Plant, Cypress Gardens, Disney World, Busch Gardens, Tampa Airport, St. Petersburg, Sunshine Skyway Bridge, Sunken Gardens, Gator Land Zoo, Tupperware World Headquarters, Kissimmee Monument, Citrus Tower, House of Presidents Wax Museum and the beach at the Gulf of Mexico. All this and there was even time to be the dinner guests one evening of Marion and Gretchen Steinhauer (Emma's son and daughter-in-law and former Pickaway Countians) permanent residents of Winter Haven, Florida. Would you believe — sure you would — they stopped by to say hello to Les and Fern Hines at Lakeland and "ran into" villagers Clarence and Nellie West who were there visiting. Mrs. West and Mrs. Hines are sisters. On the return trip home our vacationers came through Chattanooga, Tenn. and toured Rock City which they found most interesting.

Mr. David Quincel, principal of Jackson Elementary, reports that written spelling bees have been the order of the day for several days in the fifth and sixth grades as a process of elimination to determine that school's top speller to compete in the Westfall District spell-off. The district contest was held this past week with Paula Azbell of Mrs. Florence McGhee's Jackson fifth grade taking first place. Danny Riffle, a student in Miss Teri Hardy's Jackson fifth grade placed as district alternate. Also competing in the district were Kenny Smith and Dana Marshall from Monroe Elementary and J. C. Gantz from Darby Elementary. This Friday, Feb. 9 at 9:30 a.m. Paula will compete with the first place winners from Teays Valley and Logan Elm (these two schools also include junior high in the contest) at the Pickaway County Superintendents office with Mr. Bill Hundley in charge of proceedings. The Westfall District contest was very competitive with a small margin of error among the contestants Mr. Quincel reports. Locally, Paula is a daughter of Paul and Carol Azbell; Kenny is the son of Ken and Ginny Smith and Danny is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Riffle. Congratulations to all five district contestants and extra special best wishes to Paula for Friday's competition.

Alleman left, now alleman right, swing your corner partner and all that kind of stuff this Saturday night at the Volunteer Firemen's 50-50 dance to be held 8 until 12 at the Pavilion.

Think About: Heart Sunday chairmen will soon be contacting volunteers to help with the fund drive — won't you please say yes when she calls on you? Give (of your time and talents) so others might live!

New Vaccine Looks Ahead For 5 Years

PARIS (AP)—The Pasteur Institute says it has developed a vaccine against all types of influenza that are expected to develop in the next five years.

Prof. Claude Hannoun, head of the institute's ecology unit, said Tuesday that previous flu vaccines have been developed only after each new type of virus appeared. But by transforming the virus into all the forms it is expected to take between now and 1978, he said the institute's doctors formulated a vaccine against all of them.

Hannoun said the vaccine also is effective against the types of flu that developed from the 1969 "Hong Kong" virus. He said the vaccine is in production and will become available generally as soon as the government approves.

The vaccine resulted from a process in which forms of flu virus yet to come were artificially created in the laboratory, Hannoun said.

Hannoun explained that flu virus undergoes a basic change about once every 10 years. Within this 10-year span, it undergoes variations, that regularly defeat existing flu vaccines.

The Pasteur Institute took the basic 1969 Hong Kong strain of virus, worked it with antibodies that forced it to undergo variations, and isolated the ultimate stage of variation.

The ultimate stage of variation — expected five years from now in real life — is a state in which it is chemically impossible for the virus to change. It then undergoes a mutation into a new form, and the process begins again.

Wide Voting Probe Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican senators may try to broaden the congressional probe of the Watergate bugging incident to include presidential elections back to 1960 in an effort to extend possible political damage to Democrats.

GOP sources said Tuesday this is one of several amendments being considered to the Senate resolution setting up a special committee to investigate alleged Republican spying on Democrats in 1972.

Another proposal to be discussed when debate on the resolution resumes today would expand the committee to include three Republicans and three Democrats instead of the 3-2 Democratic majority now planned, the sources said.

As it now stands, the probe is expected to focus on the motives and financing of the break-in and bugging of Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington.

Two former officials of President Nixon's re-election campaign were convicted by a U.S. District Court Jan. 30 of conspiracy, bribery and wiretapping in connection with the incident. Five other persons, including a former Nixon security man, pleaded guilty to similar charges early in the trial.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who is to head the committee, said he hopes for final action today on the resolution creating it.

Republicans reportedly are interested in expanding the investigation to include alleged Democratic sabotage of the 1964 campaign of Sen. Barry Goldwater and also unspecified incidents dating back to the 1960 campaign between Nixon and the late President John F. Kennedy.

They also want to include investigations of recent demonstrations against Nixon by antiwar activists.

Democrats on Capitol Hill have initiated the probe, saying the trial failed to get behind the bugging, partly because the Nixon administration's Justice Department was reluctant to

Soil Conservation Provides Issue On Fund Impoundment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's clash with Congress over how to spend hundreds of billions of dollars is beginning in the House with a scrap about whether the little farmer should get 65 cents a day to save his soil.

Amid Republican predictions of Nixon vetoes to keep his budget intact, and Democratic claims of White House moves toward one-man rule, the House was set to vote today on the fate of something called REAP—a Farm-Belt legend that's news to most city folk. REAP is the Rural Environmental Assistance Program.

Other developments in the expanding power struggle between the White House and Capitol Hill included unanimous agreement by a Senate-House budget-control panel Tuesday on general principles providing for Congress to fix and follow a federal spending ceiling.

Meantime, the Justice Department said Nixon has power to impound funds virtually as he sees fit in order to check overspending by the legislators, and that it would be unwise for Congress to try a court battle. Senators promptly attacked the department's views.

While House Democrats pushed for resurrecting REAP, Republican congressmen sought to keep it in the grave to which the Nixon administration had sent it last Christmas. The soil conservation program, born during the dust storms of the Depression, provided federal payments for such farm projects as building ponds and terracing. The administration called it a low-priority program that no longer belonged in a tight federal budget.

REAP, with its average annual payment of $239 per farmer, might have been an obscure victim of Nixon's drive to hold spending at $250 billion. But Democrats held it up as a symbol of the President's post-election budget actions and called such a cutback a challenge to the power on Congress in setting spending priorities.

Democrats on the House Agriculture Committee swiftly produced a bill to restore the $225-million REAP activity, making the program mandatory instead of at the discretion of the Agriculture Department.

Project Signs

Everything is in readiness for the illage street signs to be erected and weather permitting the task will be undertaken this Saturday. Volunteers to do the job is the order of the day and it is hoped that a goodly number of men and young men (teen-agers, etc) will be at Smiley's garage at 9 a.m. Saturday morning to get the job done. If you anticipate helping on this very worthwhile project please contact either Harvey Looney (986-2275) or Robert Metzger (986-2091) or just plain be there at the appointed hour. However it would be nice if the two men knew whom to count on. Also, any one desiring to contribute to the cause of paying for the signs may do so by sending to Doris Reynolds, Sorosis treasurer, Williamsport, Ohio 43164.

It is quite exciting to be a part of this sorely needed village improvement. Many thanks are to be extended to Sorosis organization and their president Annabelle (Mrs. William) Rhinesmith for initiating this worthy venture. The cost will be in the neighborhood of approximately $600 and since Sorosis does not ever have this large a treasury and because they sincerely felt it should be a community project that is the reason for approaching all local businesses and other organizations for contributions as well as welcoming donations from individuals. The committee, Mary (Mrs. Carl) Gearheart, Margene (Mrs. Harvey) Looney and Frances (Mrs. Harold) Fry are now hopeful of the future project of establishing house numbers. They are fortunate to have a map from the files of the late Ernie Hill that should provide helpful information.

The flu bug continues to fell its victims and some of the latest on the list are Bunny and Joyce Stevens, LuAnn Howell, Mindy Picklesimer and her grandmother Betty Cox who had the misfortune to fall out of bed and suffer broken ribs, too.

Rushed to the hospital quite ill in the wee hours of the Sunday a.m. is one of nicest people it is my privilege to know, Mrs. Walter (Elsie) Wright. She is a patient at Berger Hospital in Room 110 and her many friends wish her a speedy and complete recovery to good health.

Helen (Mrs. Paul) Whitesed who underwent surgery a few weeks ago had returned to her bus driving job this week but was taken ill and will not be able to be on the route for several days. Just listen to those moans and groans from her passengers.

The beautiful weekend weather was made even more so for Mrs. Fannie Follrod since her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Clark Bush of Dayton spent Saturday and Sunday with her.

Difficult situations seems to come in bunches and so it has been for our own Rev. Dick Crosby at the United Methodist Church. First his father, Mr. Londo Crosby was seriously ill and hospitalized. He has now been discharged to his home. Right on the heels of this came the serious illness of Rev. Crosby's daughter, Sylvia Phillips. She is a patient at Paulding Co. Hospital, Paulding, Ohio. May the dark clouds of distress roll away sooner than soon and nothing but bright sunny days be in store for the Crosby family.

Little girl friends have found a special delight in sleeping overnight with each other since time immemorial and that's how it was when Amy Easterday overnighed Saturday with Sheryl Cox at the home of her grandparents, Harry and Cora Young and her mommie Louise Cox.

Wide Voting Probe Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican senators may try to broaden the congressional probe of the Watergate bugging incident to include presidential elections back to 1960 in an effort to extend possible political damage to Democrats.

GOP sources said Tuesday this is one of several amendments being considered to the Senate resolution setting up a special committee to investigate alleged Republican spying on Democrats in 1972.

Another proposal to be discussed when debate on the resolution resumes today would expand the committee to include three Republicans and three Democrats instead of the 3-2 Democratic majority now planned, the sources said.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who is to head the committee, said he hopes for final action today on the resolution creating it.

Republicans reportedly are interested in expanding the investigation to include alleged Democratic sabotage of the 1964 campaign of Sen. Barry Goldwater and also unspecified incidents dating back to the 1960 campaign between Nixon and the late President John F. Kennedy.

They also want to include investigations of recent demonstrations against Nixon by antiwar activists.

Democrats on Capitol Hill have initiated the probe, saying the trial failed to get behind the bugging, partly because the Nixon administration's Justice Department was reluctant to

Soil Conservation Provides Issue On Fund Impoundment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's clash with Congress over how to spend hundreds of billions of dollars is beginning in the House with a scrap about whether the little farmer should get 65 cents a day to save his soil.

Amid Republican predictions of Nixon vetoes to keep his budget intact, and Democratic claims of White House moves toward one-man rule, the House was set to vote today on the fate of something called REAP—a Farm-Belt legend that's news to most city folk. While House Democrats pushed for resurrecting REAP, Republican congressmen sought to keep it in the grave to which the Nixon administration had sent it last Christmas. The soil conservation program, born during the dust storms of the Depression, provided federal payments for such farm projects as building ponds and terracing. The administration called it a low-priority program that no longer belonged in a tight federal budget.

REAP, with its average annual payment of $239 per farmer, might have been an obscure victim of Nixon's drive to hold spending at $250 billion. But Democrats held it up as a symbol of the President's post-election budget actions and called such a cutback a challenge to the power on Congress in setting spending priorities.

Democrats on the House Agriculture Committee swiftly produced a bill to restore the $239-million REAP activity, making the program mandatory instead of at the discretion of the Agriculture Department.

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Wet and snowy weather returned to most of Ohio Wednesday night and early Thursday with conditions expected to change Friday into generally fair weather but lower temperatures.

A cold front has moved eastward across the state, but another is approaching from the northwest.

Snow accumulations were small in the early morning hours but were expected to increase slightly during the day.

The National Weather Service said the cold front which began moving across the state was situated in the extreme eastern edge of the state by early Thursday.

Snow accumulations of an inch were reported by both Toledo and Dayton at 1 a.m. and the snow depth was up to an inch at Cleveland by 6 a.m. Snow depth reports were incomplete over the remainder of the state, but eastern Ohio had very little as the precipitation during most of the night was in the form of rain.

Snow depths of one to three inches are predicted for most of the state before it ends later today.

Along with the snow the cold front brought much colder air into Ohio and temperatures are expected to continue falling and be in the 20s throughout the state by early this afternoon. Low readings in the 5 to 15 degree range are forecast for tonight and cold wave warnings are in effect for all of Ohio except those areas adjacent to Lake Erie.

Snow will end gradually from the west today and clearing is expected in most of the state tonight except the snow belt areas along the shores of Lake Erie and over the higher elevations of northeastern Ohio. Here snow flurries and locally heavier snow squalls could add some snow accumulation tonight.

With the generally fair weather and continued cold temperatures expected for Friday, there will be increasing cloudiness and a chance of snow again Friday night or Saturday as the new frontal system approaches from the northwest.

Wedding Vows Repeated By Couple Wed 73 Years

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — John Virgil Kemplen, 95, and his wife Leona, 89, repeated their marriage vows on their 73rd anniversary Wednesday in a nursing home.

"We want to show that a man and wife can live together unto death—there's no use in separation," said Kemplen.

He suffered polio in 1945 and lost his eyesight six years later. Mrs. Kemplen, in a traditional white wedding dress and veil borrowed from her granddaughter, is confined to a wheel chair.

She said the second marriage was her idea. A number of couples at the Oxford View Nursing Home have done it, she said.

"Through the fear of God and love of a woman, you can have a marriage that lasts this long," said her husband.

Hear Arguments On Busing Plans

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Oral arguments on a massive busing plan for students in Detroit and 52 suburban school districts were scheduled today before the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

A three-judge panel of the circuit court ruled on the case Dec. 8, agreeing with the findings of U.S. District Court Judge Stephen Roth that the Detroit school system is segregated.

But the court vacated its own order Jan. 16, and agreed to convene a full nine-judge panel to re-hear arguments on the controversial plan.

Integration Ordered For Dayton Schools

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — the Dayton School Board was ordered Wednesday to prepare a desegregation plan with 60 days.

Judge Carl B. Rubin, who said the plan must abolish all option attendance zones in the Dayton system, restate the priority high school attendance in the Freedom of Enrollment Plan so that no student of minority race may be denied admission and that transfers for racial balance takes precedent over curriculum transfers.

Egyptians, Reds Talk

CAIRO (AP) — Hafez Ismail, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's security adviser, has left for Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders on "the latest Middle East developments."

They feared that they wouldn't live long enough for the repeat of their marriage vows on the anniversary. Both became ill in November.

The Kemplens were married Feb. 7, 1900 in a double ceremony with her sister Willie and his brother, James, at Albany, Ky.

She said her husband was "the prettiest man I ever saw. I met him two weeks before our wedding at my father's home in Albany."

Kemplen became an evangelist in 1909 and served in various churches, and moved to Hamilton, Ohio, in 1929. Sometimes he "preached with patched pants," Leona recalled.

"Evangelism was my greatest challenge," he said, adding that his motto was: "God first, Leona and the family second, and helping people in the world."

During the first year of their marriage she had typhoid fever.

"I've been sick all my life," she said, "I was struck by a car, had a stroke and broke my hip."

"The greatest thing is that he stayed with me, even though I was sick. He always said I'm worth a million dollars to him."

The wedding was attended by their two sons, daughter and son-in-law and residents of the home. The couple have seven grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Dead Man
Said Behind
3 Murders

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbus police have accused Joe Bogen, a 39-year-old former Columbus man who was shot and killed last July in a Cleveland after-hours bar of a slaying here in 1969 and a double murder here in 1970.

Police said Wednesday that Bogen, who lived in Cleveland at the time of his death, was the lone killer of Edgar W. Edgar, 52, on June 24, 1969, and Frank Yassenoff, 63, and his fiancée, Mrs. Ella Rich, 51, on March 23, 1970. All of the victims were shot.

Police at one time discounted robbery as a motive in the Yassenoff-Rich murders, but gave that as the motive Wednesday.

Law officers said they believed burglary was the motive in the death of Edgar.

Bogen was killed by James Smith, 24, of Cleveland, his partner in the afterhours bar.

Ballistics experts have identified the slugs taken from Bogen's body as coming from the same gun that killed Yassenoff and his fiancée.

Detectives said Smith got the gun from Bogen for protection while working at the bar. The gun has never been found.

According to police, a .38-caliber revolver, used in the Edgar killing, was traced back to Bogen about two months after the shooting.

Detectives said that while Bogen was being held here on narcotics charges last June he was questioned about the Edgar case. They said he told them he could find the Yassenoff murder weapon if he could get to Cleveland.

Soil Payments
Face Rejection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid congressional cries of whiplashing, bullet-biting and bellyaching over the battle of the budget, President Nixon has lost an opening skirmish—but indications are that he may eventually veto to victory.

After rejecting Republican ideas for compromise, the House voted Wednesday to require Nixon to restart the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) he ordered halted last Christmas. REAP helps farmers save their soil.

With 199 Democrats and 52 Republicans in favor of making REAP mandatory with $225 million through June 30, Nixon was beaten 251 to 142. Twenty Democrats voted against the bill.

But, if it had been a ballot to override a veto, Nixon would have won by 11 votes. A two-thirds majority is needed to override. Many believe another presidential veto is assured if it passes the Senate.

When several Republicans raised the threat of veto, Rep. W.R. Poage, D-Tex., chairman of the Agriculture Committee and chief advocate of the bill, responded in House debate: "Let him crack his whip!"

But Rep. John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., said Nixon "asked Congress to go with him in cutting expenditures . . . and this is the first bullet we're being asked to bite. It may not be much money, but the world is watching the House to see if we have the courage to do the tough thing."

Link Coal Comeback To Eased Pollution Rules

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The growing need for energy should greatly boost the demand for coal, industry officials say, but rising costs and environmental regulations are hampering the process.

Charles T. Jones, vice president of Amherst Coal Co., says coal demand is expected by some to double over the next 15 years. Because of the energy crisis and the growing need for fuel, he says, "I can't help but be a little optimistic."

However, Jones and other industry officials said at a news conference Wednesday, much of the nation's coal may be virtually outlawed if technology is not available to meet 1975 pollution standards, and labor and regulatory costs are driving the cost of mining up, reducing American coal's competitiveness in the world markets.

L. James Huegel, executive vice president of Consolidation Coal Co., said that if technology to meet 1975 sulphur oxide standards is not ready to go on time, 41 per cent of Consolidation's northern West Virginia production (some 32 million tons in 1972; will be outlawed.

He blamed the sharp environmental restrictions on "a definite over-reaction. I think we all recognize these (air quality compliance) schedules must be pushed back."

Firms represented in the news conference included Consolidation, Amherst, Carbon Fuel Sales Co., Eastern Associated Coal Corp., Valley Camp Coal Co. and Island Creek Coal Co.

Exports make up roughly one-third of the state's coal market, Huegel said. But the cost of mining is pushing prices far above those quoted for coal from Australia, Canada and Poland.

Utilities purchase nearly half of the state's production for electrical generation, Huegel added. But price and environmental restrictions are forcing utilities to turn to other fuels, notably imported oil.

"The United States can't continue buying foreign oil at the rate we are now," Jones said. He noted that the imports are straining America's balance of payments overseas, and that other nations now need much of the same oil. "Coal is the only alternative."

School Principal Flattened
In 1st Golden Gloves Test

MIAMI (AP) — Dr. Von N. Beebe, a grade school principal who wanted to see what it was like to be hit, flunked his first Golden Gloves boxing test.

"I smelled the sweat and felt what it was like, so I have no regrets," said the 32-year-old Beebe through a bleeding lip. "It was an experience, believe me. But I learned something."

Beebe, principal of Leroy D. Fienberg Elementary School of Miami Beach, suffered a pounding and then lost on a second-round technical knockout to Ken Ryals in the 160-pound, subnovice class (five bouts or less) of the Florida Golden Gloves tournament Wednesday night. It was Beebe's first bout.

Ryals caught the long-haired Beebe with a short left seconds after the start of the match, sending the educator sprawling on the seat of his red trunks.

But Beebe, a muscular former rugby player at Dartmouth College, scurried to his feet at the eight count and waded back in against Ryals, a 23-year-old carpenter from Homestead, Fla.

However, as Ryals said after the bout, "He just kept walking into my left."

Beebe, looking fresh despite a cut lip and a blue lump over his left eye, said he was far from disappointed in his performance.

"The other guy was better. He knew how to hit, and I couldn't protect myself. I was getting hit because my hands were too low," the former Bronxville, N.Y., man said.

But Beebe said he felt he succeeded because "I got the taste of defeat and that's something . . . You learn something."

Will Beebe continue boxing? "Certainly, but I wouldn't want to do it all the time," he said. "I feel good and I have no regrets."

Male Telephone Operators Find New Jobs Interesting

DETROIT (AP) — Although some men's libbers may label it "tokenism," Michigan Bell is making an effort. Why, .011 per cent of its 5,400 information operators across the state are men.

And the 60 male operators reachable at "411" seem to enjoy their work, and much of their enjoyment comes from the weird reactions they occasionally get when they boom "new number assistance" in their best baritone.

They said some customers gasp, stammer, apologize for dialing the wrong number or just hang up.

"A lady reached me last week and asked when I go out for lunch," said James Taylor, an information operator.

But, the 21-year-old former prep football player is no easier to get a date with than his female coworkers.

"I told her I was having lunch with my parents," he said.

And four-month veteran Paul Davenport, 21, said he once had a female on the line who wanted to get together with him after work and talk about their "hang-ups."

"One nice lady," recounts Davenport, "called in and told me: 'Young lady, you should take care of that sore throat. You sound just awful.'"

Lawyers Fight
No-Fault Again

CLEVELAND (AP) — Lawyers from across the nation are marshaling forces to block a federal no-fault automobile-insurance law as the American Bar Association convenes today for its midyear meeting.

The coordinating committee of state bar presidents scheduled a meeting this evening on the no-fault issue, and the panel's decision could be decisive says Ernest H. Fremont Jr., the Kansas City, Mo., lawyer who heads it. A successful effort to put ABA on record opposing federal action on no-fault was led by the bar presidents last summer.

Workers To Return

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A spokesman for the Columbus Westinghouse Corp. plant says the 1,500 furloughed workers at the facility may be back to their jobs Feb. 14.

Women generally seem to like being helped by males more than males do, they said.

"You're not as fast as the ladies and you're probably not as cute either," was what one man told Davenport.

And a female operator said there are occasional female chauvinists who don't expect as much from male operators.

"The same lady who would call a female operator dumb and stupid," she said, "will tell fellows: 'Take it easy.' 'Take your time.'"

Tax Tiff Suggestion
By Solon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Michael J. Maloney, R-7, Cincinnati, chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee says working married couples should figure their federal and state income tax liability separately and jointly before filing returns.

Maloney said Wednesday he believes many couples may find a way to realize tax advantages "not yet apparent" if they look at the alternatives.

Maloney made the suggestion in view of increasing public pressure to change the state law that says married couples must file joint state returns if they file joint federal returns.

Under this practice, they may gain a federal tax advantage, but must pay more state tax than they would if they could file separate state returns.

"In most cases, I feel that couples have not examined the result of filing individually for both the federal and state taxes. My belief is that Ohio tax tables are set up in such a way that the increase in liability to the federal government through filing separate returns will be more than offset by the decrease in total liability resulting from filing separate reports for the state tax," Maloney said.

Maloney said he opposes the present state law and believes it will be changed by the General Assembly. "But it will be impossible to change the law and have it go into effect before the April tax deadline," he said.

that they cannot obtain sufficient low-sulphur coal in West Virginia to meet the 1975 air standards have been answered by charges from environmentalists that they are ignoring the state's large reserves of low-sulphur coal.

Huegel and the other executives said critics must realize there is more to the situation than simple reserve tonnage figures.

Much of the low-sulphur coal in reserve is in thin seams of around 40 inches, and miners are not eager to work in such conditions. Other seams, although low in sulphur, are low in quality and not compatible with many power plant furnace designs.

Dead Man
Said Behind
3 Murders

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbus police have accused Joe Bogen, a 39-year-old former Columbus man who was shot and killed last July in a Cleveland after-hours bar of a slaying here in 1969 and a double murder here in 1970.

Police said Wednesday that Bogen, who lived in Cleveland at the time of his death, was the lone killer of Edgar W. Edgar, 52, on June 24, 1969, and Frank Yassenoff, 63, and his fiancée, Mrs. Ella Rich, 51, on March 23, 1970. All of the victims were shot.

Police at one time discounted robbery as a motive in the Yassenoff-Rich murders, but gave that as the motive Wednesday.

Law officers said they believed burglary was the motive in the death of Edgar.

Bogen was killed by James Smith, 24, of Cleveland, his partner in the afterhours bar.

Ballistics experts have identified the slugs taken from Bogen's body as coming from the same gun that killed Yassenoff and his fiancée.

Detectives said Smith got the gun from Bogen for protection while working at the bar. The gun has never been found.

According to police, a .38-caliber revolver, used in the Edgar killing, was traced back to Bogen about two months after the shooting.

Detectives said that while Bogen was being held here on narcotics charges last June he was questioned about the Edgar case. They said he told them he could find the Yassenoff murder weapon if he could get to Cleveland.

Soil Payments
Face Rejection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid congressional cries of whiplashing, bullet-biting and bellyaching over the battle of the budget, President Nixon has lost an opening skirmish—but indications are that he may eventually veto to victory.

After rejecting Republican ideas for compromise, the House voted Wednesday to require Nixon to restart the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) he ordered halted last Christmas. REAP helps farmers save their soil.

With 199 Democrats and 52 Republicans in favor of making REAP mandatory with $225 million through June 30, Nixon was beaten 251 to 142. Twenty Democrats voted against the bill.

But, if it had been a ballot to override a veto, Nixon would have won by 11 votes. A two-thirds majority is needed to override. Many believe another presidential veto is assured if it passes the Senate.

When several Republicans raised the threat of veto, Rep. W.R. Poage, D-Tex., chairman of the Agriculture Committee and chief advocate of the bill, responded in House debate: "Let him crack his whip!"

But Rep. John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., said Nixon "asked Congress to go with him in cutting expenditures . . . and this is the first bullet we're being asked to bite. It may not be much money, but the world is watching the House to see if we have the courage to do the tough thing."

Link Coal Comeback To Eased Pollution Rules

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The growing need for energy should greatly boost the demand for coal, industry officials say, but rising costs and environmental regulations are hampering the process.

Charles T. Jones, vice president of Amherst Coal Co., says coal demand is expected by some to double over the next 15 years. Because of the energy crisis and the growing need for fuel, he says, "I can't help but be a little optimistic."

However, Jones and other industry officials said at a news conference Wednesday, much of the nation's coal may be virtually outlawed if technology is not available to meet 1975 pollution standards, and labor and regulatory costs are driving the cost of mining up, reducing American coal's competitiveness in the world markets.

L. James Huegel, executive vice president of Consolidation Coal Co., said that if technology to meet 1975 sulphur oxide standards is not ready to go on time, 41 per cent of Consolidation's northern West Virginia production (some 32 million tons in 1972; will be outlawed.

He blamed the sharp environmental restrictions on "a definite over-reaction. I think we all recognize these (air quality compliance) schedules must be pushed back."

Firms represented in the news conference included Consolidation, Amherst, Carbon Fuel Sales Co., Eastern Associated Coal Corp., Valley Camp Coal Co. and Island Creek Coal Co.

Exports make up roughly one-third of the state's coal market, Huegel said. But the cost of mining is pushing prices far above those quoted for coal from Australia, Canada and Poland.

Utilities purchase nearly half of the state's production for electrical generation, Huegel added. But price and environmental restrictions are forcing utilities to turn to other fuels, notably imported oil.

"The United States can't continue buying foreign oil at the rate we are now," Jones said. He noted that the imports are straining America's balance of payments overseas, and that other nations now need much of the same oil. "Coal is the only alternative."

School Principal Flattened
In 1st Golden Gloves Test

MIAMI (AP) — Dr. Von N. Beebe, a grade school principal who wanted to see what it was like to be hit, has flunked his first Golden Gloves boxing test.

"I smelled the sweat and felt what it was like, so I have no regrets," said the 32-year-old Beebe through a bleeding lip. "It was an experience, believe me. But I learned something."

Beebe, principal of Leroy D. Fienberg Elementary School of Miami Beach, suffered a pounding and then lost on a second-round technical knockout to Ken Ryals in the 160-pound, subnovice class (five bouts or less) of the Florida Golden Gloves tournament Wednesday night. It was Beebe's first bout.

Ryals caught the long-haired Beebe with a short left seconds after the start of the match, sending the educator sprawling on the seat of his red trunks.

But Beebe, a muscular former rugby player at Dartmouth College, scurried to his feet at the eight count and waded back in against Ryals, a 23-year-old carpenter from Homestead, Fla.

However, as Ryals said after the bout, "He just kept walking into my left."

Beebe, looking fresh despite a cut lip and a blue lump over his left eye, said he was far from disappointed in his performance.

"The other guy was better. He knew how to hit, and I couldn't protect myself. I was getting hit because my hands were too low," the former Bronxville, N.Y., man said.

Will Beebe continue boxing?

"Certainly, but I wouldn't want to do it all the time," he said. "I feel good and I have no regrets."

OSU, Minnesota Players Hope For Peaceful Game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We just can't worry about the feelings behind it. We just have to go out and play a normal game," said Mark Wagar.

The lean 6-foot-8 senior forward hasn't even scored in his brief Ohio State basketball appearances this season, but he was one of the principals in the game-ending brawl at Minnesota last year.

The Gophers visit here Saturday in a nationally-televised contest (1:30 p.m. EST) in the Big Ten Rivals' lone meeting this season.

Wagar again will ride the bench. However, he has some thoughts about the famous rematch after being hospitalized after the contest in Minneapolis Jan. 25, 1972.

"There's got to be a lot of feeling behind this game," admitted Wagar. "But I don't anticipate any trouble. "It should be a great game," he added. "We're coming on and they (Minnesota) have proven themselves."

Luke Witte, 7-foot Ohio State center also detained in a Minneapolis hospital overnight with injuries from the melee, is concerned about a sellout St. John Arena crowd of 13,489.

"I just hope the crowd treats them like any other opponent and gets behind us," said the big senior, who regained his starting job in the 70-69 upset of league-leading Indiana Monday night.

Ron Behagen, suspended with Gopher teammate Corky Taylor for his part in the brawl said he isn't going to worry about playing before a hostile road crowd.

"It's just another game," said the 6-foot-10 Gophers' senior forward. "If something weird is going to happen, it's going to happen anyway."

MAC Council Of Presidents Ponders League Expansion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The close-knit Mid-American Conference Council of Presidents meets here Friday with league expansion the No. 1 item on its agenda.

Officials are tight-lipped about additional growth pains for the league that expanded to eight teams with the acceptance of Eastern Michigan and Central Michigan in 1971.

The presidents meet in closed executive session with only MAC commissioner Fred Jacoby joining them. They seldom announce results of the meeting immediately either.

Ball State and Northern Illinois are mentioned as prime contenders for the ninth and tenth spots in the conference

if the presidents elect to expand the league again.

"In essence, I would favor expansion," Jacoby said. "For the matter of coverage, it would be an advantage to have more states and would help our potential television exposure."

The commissioner, however, made it clear he does not speak for the independent-thinking presidents, headed by Chairman Phillip R. Shriver, the Miami of Ohio president.

Jacoby did acknowledge there were new applicants for the league, but he would not divulge their names or even say how many.

"If the presidents decide to take in one or two new members," Jacoby continued, "I don't look for an announcement right away."

The commissioner said he believes conference officials would want to visit the newcomers' campuses to go over final details first.

"We're talking about a longterm marriage, not a short courtship," Jacoby said of any new members.

Sam Houston Remains A Top Cage Ratings

Sam Houston State remains No. 1 in the Associated Press College Division poll and the distinction is driving their fans into a frenzy.

The Bearcats, winners of 17 games this season through last Saturday and 23 in a row over a two-season span, easily outdistanced runner-up Augustana, Ill., accumulating 13 of 15 first-place votes and 278 points.

Coach Archie Porter of Sam Houston State is a happy man. "We're delighted to be the top dog. I think the top rating has helped our confidence".

Augustana, 18-1, received one first-place vote in the voting by a national panel of sports broadcasters and writers, and advanced from third place to second with 222 points.

Stephen F. Austin, 18-2, garnered the other No. 1 vote and climbed from fourth to third with 206 points.

Assumption, Mass., 13-1, jumped two places to fourth. Philadelphia Textile, 17-1, leaped from 10th to fifth. Roanoke, 14-4, advanced one position to sixth. Huntsman Steps Down As ISU Grid Coach

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP)— Jerry Huntsman is stepping down as head football coach at Indiana State University to become assistant athletic director.

Huntsman has been coach here seven years and will continue his duties as coach until a replacement is found. Indiana State had a 7-3 record this past season, winning its last five games. Huntsman's best season was in 1968 when the Sycamores were 9-1 and he was nominated for small schools coach of the year.

Wright State, KSU Post Ohio Victories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
For the first time ever Wright State has insured itself of at least an even collegiate basketball season.

Wright State, which entered collegiate sports three years ago, defeated Marian of Indianapolis, Ind., 91-68 Wednesday night. The victory gives Wright State an 11-4 season mark, with seven games remaining. In other Ohio college basketball, Kent State blew a 13-point lead but charged back in the last half to defeat the University of Pittsburgh 74-68.

Miami Coach Darrell Hedric said he saw "nothing positive" in his team's effort.

"We weren't ready to play. Then we got too far behind. Marshall's fast break really hurt us. We weren't getting back. That shows a lack of being ready to play.

"We just have to start all over," Hedric said

Ohio Dominican, forced to play its best ball when behind, dropped Mid-Ohio Conference Leader Rio Grande 92-77. The Panthers shot 49 per cent from the field and owned the boards, 53-32. They had been behind 35-15 with nine minutes remaining in the first half, but surged back with a 32-point performance by 6-foot-6 center Ken Richardson.

Akron went on a second half scoring spree in its 97-66 victory over Gannon College of Pennsylvania. The Zips, after leading by only 37-36 at halftime, utilized a zone defense and scored 61 points in the second half.

California State College of Pennsylvania used stall tactics in its game with Steubenville, but saw them backfire as the Barons pulled out a 19-17 victory. The margin came on Jim Garrigan's three-point play in the closing seconds.

Clifford Pratt's 31 points paced Shaw College of Detroit in its overwhelming 107-73 victory over Central State University.

Defiance needed two overtimes to defeat Bluffton 88-86 in the Hoosier-Buckeye Conference.

In other games, DePaul defeated Xavier 89-67, Wooster trounced Marietta, 71-53, Youngstown had an easy time with Baldwin-Wallace, 88-50, Oakland defeated Ashland 114-97, Malone squeaked by Tiffin 89-85, Urbana romped over Walsh 71-56, Thiel barely defeated Hiram 68-67, Cleveland State had just as much trouble beating Wayne State 65-64, and Wilmington defeated Manchester 70-58.

OSOC Chief Faces Ouster At Meeting

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Arthur Lentz, $30,000-a-year executive director, is slated to be the main victim of a shakeup this weekend in the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The former University of Wisconsin publicist, administrative head of the USOC since 1966, will be replaced by his present assistant director, Col. Don Miller, a source close to the situation told the Associated Press today.

Philip O. Krumm, the incoming president, declined to discuss the report other than to say: "There will be some important changes in our organization—yes, they will affect Olympic House. But I can't reveal them for a couple of days."

Krumm is a 66-year-old former sales representative from Kenosha, Wis., who succeeds Clifford Buck of Denver, a retired sporting goods executive, as USOC president in the organization's darkest hour.

Around 150 delegates poured into this fashionable winter resort today to attempt to regrid America's greatest amateur sports body, already deserted by major colleges and under heavy fire from Congress and a militant, college-backed group known as The Committee for a Better Olympics.

Missing were delegates from the powerful National Collegiate Athletic Association and 37 individual conferences, making a total absentee list of about 125. The NCAA withdrew its support shortly before the ill-starred Munich Olympics, calling for a complete overhaul of the USOC structure.

Irish Zone Drops Curtain On Michigan State, 85-72

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Michigan State's basketball team spent a week in South Bend Wednesday night.

At least it must have seemed that way after a long, long night with Notre Dame.

"We played a horrible game," said Michigan State Coach Gus Ganakas after dropping an 85-72 decision to the Fighting Irish. "As the second half wore on, we became more disorganized and they got stronger through organization."

The "organization" to which Ganakas referred was Notre Dame's tough zone defense. It no doubt looked like the Twilight Zone to Michigan

State's lost Spartans.

"Our zone at the end of the game won it for us," said Notre Dame Coach Dick "Digger" Phelps. "When we started to stall with about three minutes to play, we were up by six points. And after that, we just pulled away."

In other games Wednesday night, No. 3 Long Beach State walloped San Diego State 97-76; 12th-ranked Providence defeated St. Joseph's, Pa., 81-75 and No. 17 San Francisco beat Santa Clara 78-69.

Michigan State had a 35-34 lead over Notre Dame at the half, but buckled under a second-half assault led by the Fighting Irish's Gary Novak. He scored 18 of his 24 points in the last stanza.

Tigers Host Washington In Key SCO League Game

The Circleville basketball Tigers can move into a tie for the lead in the South Central Ohio League Friday by defeating visiting Washington C. H., currently holding a one game lead.

The Blue Lions spot a 6-2 loop record while Circleville, Wilmington and Miami Trace all have 5-3 records in the league.

The Tigers' overall mark is the best in the league at 11 wins and four losses.

Washington is not at the top of the league in team statistics, but the Lions seem to get the job done. They rank third defensively, allowing opponents to score 63.6 points per game compared to Circleville's defensive average of 56 points for opposition. The Tigers lead the league in this statistic.

Circleville is second offensively, averaging 70.3 points per game compared to 65.3 for the Lions, fifth in the league.

Washington does not have a player in the top five scorers in league games, while Circleville's Dave Truex ranks fourth in the league with a 17.5 average.

On paper, the Tigers appear to be the best team. But in the first meeting between Washington and Circleville on Jan. 5, the Blue Lions apparently forgot to compare statistics. And chances are they will ignore them this weekend.

Circleville went into a three-game nose dive beginning Jan. 26 at Hillsboro, continuing the next night against Miami Trace. But last Saturday they halted the losing streak by defeating Hamilton Twp. and coach John Lawhorn hopes to keep his charges on their winning ways.

In addition to Truex, Dan Graham and Greg Hoskins are among the leading scorers in the league. Graham is averaging 14.5 points per game and Hoskins 12.3.

On Saturday Circleville travels to Madison Plains, a team that has made a very poor showing against other South Central Ohio League teams. So poor, in fact, that they have asked to be dropped from league membership even before beginning competition. Originally the school had been accepted for membership beginning with the 1973-74 athletic season.

In other league games Friday, Wilmington is at Miami Trace in a battle that will move the winner up a notch in the league standings and Greenfield is at Hillsboro.

Saturday games involving league schools find East Clinton at Wilmington and Hillsboro at Blanchester.

MTHS Grid Coach Resigns

WASHINGTON C. H. — Fred Bernier, head football coach at Miami Trace High School, resigned Tuesday at the regular meeting of the Fayette County Board of Education.

He has accepted a head football post at Covington (Ky.) Catholic High School where he will take over at the beginning of the 1973 season. Miami Trace was 3-2 in the South Central Ohio League football race last fall and had a 7-3 overall record.

Bernier also resigned as head track coach this spring and Chuck Wallace was named to take over his duties.

Laurelville Teams Top St. Mary

Laurelville seventh and eighth grade basketball teams swept games with Chillicothe St. Mary Tuesday night in the Laurelville gym.

The seventh grade broke open a tight first half to defeat St. Mary 29-20 and even their season mark at 4-4.

Laurelville held an 8-6 advantage after the first period of play, 13-8 at the half and 21-14 at the end of three periods.

Todd Young paced the winners with an 11 point performance. Brad Ebert scored 7, Rusty Palm had 4, Butch Hart hit for 3 and Mark Unger and Denny Grambo and 2 each.

The Laurelville eighth graders had their work cut out for them as they trailed St. Mary 11-6 at the end of the first period and 19-17 at the half. But they were on top 28-25 after three periods of play and held on for a 37-34 win.

Charles Stump paced Laurelville with 14 points, Dave Swackhammer hit for 11, Terry Holzschuh and Mike Hart had four each and Ric Maxson and Brad Ebert had two each.

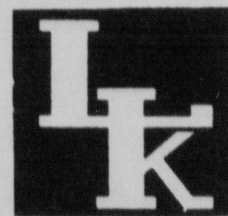

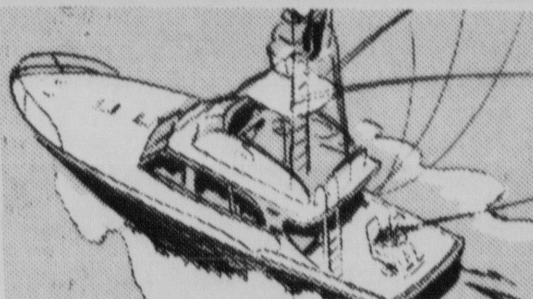

The win ups the eighth grade's season mark to 3-4.

Both teams travel to Westfall Thursday and close their seasons at Starr-Washington Saturday morning.

UC Football Status Pondered At Meeting

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The future status of football at the University of Cincinnati was scheduled for debate today at a faculty senate meeting.

OSU, Minnesota Players Hope For Peaceful Game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We just can't worry about the feelings behind it. We just have to go out and play a normal game," said Mark Wagar.

The lean 6-foot-8 senior forward hasn't even scored in his brief Ohio State basketball appearances this season, but he was one of the principals in the game-ending brawl at Minnesota last year.

The Gophers visit here Saturday in a nationally-televised contest (1:30 p.m. EST) in the Big Ten Rivals' lone meeting this season.

Wagar again will ride the bench. However, he has some thoughts about the famous rematch after being hospitalized after the contest in Minneapolis Jan. 25, 1972.

"There's got to be a lot of feeling behind this game," admitted Wagar. "But I don't anticipate any trouble. "It should be a great game," he added. "We're coming on and they (Minnesota) have proven themselves."

Luke Witte, 7-foot Ohio State center also detained in a Minneapolis hospital overnight with injuries from the melee, is concerned about a sellout St. John Arena crowd of 13,489.

"I just hope the crowd treats them like any other opponent and gets behind us," said the big senior, who regained his starting job in the 70-69 upset of league-leading Indiana Monday night.

Ron Behagen, suspended with Gopher teammate Corky Taylor for his part in the brawl said he isn't going to worry about playing before a hostile road crowd.

"It's just another game," said the 6-foot-10 Gophers' senior forward. "If something weird is going to happen, it's going to happen anyway."

MAC Council Of Presidents Ponders League Expansion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The close-knit Mid-American Conference Council of Presidents meets here Friday with league expansion the No. 1 item on its agenda.

Officials are tight-lipped about additional growth pains for the league that expanded to eight teams with the acceptance of Eastern Michigan and Central Michigan in 1971.

The presidents meet in closed executive session with only MAC commissioner Fred Jacoby joining them. They seldom announce results of the meeting immediately either.

Ball State and Northern Illinois are mentioned as prime contenders for the ninth and tenth spots in the conference

if the presidents elect to expand the league again.

"In essence, I would favor expansion," Jacoby said. "For the matter of coverage, it would be an advantage to have more states and would help our potential television exposure."

The commissioner, however, made it clear he does not speak for the independent-thinking presidents, headed by Chairman Phillip R. Shriver, the Miami of Ohio president.

Jacoby did acknowledge there were new applicants for the league, but he would not divulge their names or even say how many.

"If the presidents decide to take in one or two new members," Jacoby continued, "I don't look for an announcement right away."

The commissioner said he believes conference officials would want to visit the newcomers' campuses to go over final details first.

"We're talking about a longterm marriage, not a short courtship," Jacoby said of any new members.

Sam Houston Remains A Top Cage Ratings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sam Houston State remains No. 1 in the Associated Press College Division poll and the distinction is driving their fans into a frenzy.

The Bearkats, winners of 17 games this season through last Saturday and 23 in a row over a two-season span, easily outdistanced runner-up Augustana, Ill., accumulating 13 of 15 first-place votes and 278 points.

Coach Archie Porter of Sam Houston State is a happy man. "We're delighted to be the top dog. I think the top rating has helped our confidence".

Augustana, 18-1, received one first-place vote in the voting by a national panel of sports broadcasters and writers, and advanced from third place to second with 222 points.

Stephen F. Austin, 18-2, garnered the other No. 1 vote and climbed from fourth to third with 206 points.

Assumption, Mass., 13-1, jumped two places to fourth. Philadelphia Textile, 17-1, leaped from 10th to fifth. Roanoke, 14-4, advanced one position to sixth. Louisiana Tech, 15-3, dropped two spots to seventh. Wisconsin-Eau Claire, 13-3, plunged six places to eighth. Kentucky State, 15-3, held ninth, and Wisconsin-Milwaukee, 16-3, slipped from eighth to tenth.

Huntsman Steps Down As ISU Grid Coach

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP)— Jerry Huntsman is stepping down as head football coach at Indiana State University to become assistant athletic director.

Huntsman has been coach here seven years and will continue his duties as coach until a replacement is found. Indiana State had a 7-3 record this past season, winning its last five games. Huntsman's best season was in 1968 when the Sycamores were 9-1 and he was nominated for small schools coach of the year.

Wright State, KSU Post Ohio Victories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
For the first time ever Wright State has insured itself of at least an even collegiate basketball season.

Wright State, which entered collegiate sports three years ago, defeated Marian of Indianapolis, Ind., 91-68 Wednesday night. The victory gives Wright State an 11-4 season mark, with seven games remaining. In other Ohio college basketball, Kent State blew a 13-point lead but charged back in the last half to defeat the University of Pittsburgh 74-68.

Marshall's aggressive Thundering Herd roared to an early lead and was never threatened in taking a 68-59 non-conference victory from Miami. The victory upped Marshall's record to 14-6, while Miami dropped to 12-6.

Miami Coach Darrell Hedric said he saw "nothing positive" in his team's effort.

"We weren't ready to play. Then we got too far behind. Marshall's fast break really hurt us. We weren't getting back. That shows a lack of being ready to play.

"We just have to start all over," Hedric said

Ohio Dominican, forced to play its best ball when behind, dropped Mid-Ohio Conference Leader Rio Grande 32-77. The Panthers shot 49 per cent from the field and owned the boards, 53-32. They had been behind 35-15 with nine minutes remaining in the first half, but surged back with a 32-point performance by 6-foot-6 center Ken Richardson.

Akron went on a second half scoring spree in its 97-66 victory over Gannon College of Pennsylvania. The Zips, after leading by only 37-36 at halftime, utilized a zone defense and scored 61 points in the second half.

California State College of Pennsylvania used stall tactics in its game with Steubenville, but saw them backfire as the Barons pulled out a 19-17 victory. The margin came on Jim Garrigan's three-point play in the closing seconds.

Clifford Pratt's 31 points paced Shaw College of Detroit in its overwhelming 107-73 victory over Central State University.

Defiance needed two overtimes to defeat Bluffton 88-86 in the Hoosier-Buckeye Conference.

In other games, DePaul defeated Xavier 89-67, Wooster trounced Marietta, 71-53, Youngstown had an easy time with Baldwin-Wallace, 88-50, Oakland defeated Ashland 114-97, Malone squeaked by Tiffin 89-85, Urbana romped over Walsh 71-56, Thiel barely defeated Hiram 68-67, Cleveland State had just as much trouble beating Wayne State 65-64, and Wilmington defeated Manchester 70-58.

OSOC Chief Faces Ouster At Meeting

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Arthur Lentz, $30,000-a-year executive director, is slated to be the main victim of a shakeup this weekend in the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The former University of Wisconsin publicist, administrative head of the USOC since 1966, will be replaced by his present assistant director, Col. Don Miller, a source close to the situation told the Associated Press today.

Philip O. Krumm, the incoming president, declined to discuss the report other than to say: "There will be some important changes in our organization—yes, they will affect Olympic House. But I can't reveal them for a couple of days."

Krumm is a 66-year-old former sales representative from Kenosha, Wis., who succeeds Clifford Buck of Denver, a retired sporting goods executive, as USOC president in the organization's darkest hour.

Around 150 delegates poured into this fashionable winter resort today to attempt to regrid America's greatest amateur sports body, already deserted by major colleges and under heavy fire from Congress and a militant, college-backed group known as The Committee for a Better Olympics.

Missing were delegates from the powerful National Collegiate Athletic Association and 37 individual conferences, making a total absentee list of about 125. The NCAA withdrew its support shortly before the ill-starred Munich Olympics, calling for a complete overhaul of the USOC structure.

Irish Zone Drops Curtain On Michigan State, 85-72

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Michigan State's basketball team spent a week in South Bend Wednesday night.

At least it must have seemed that way after a long, long night with Notre Dame.

"We played a horrible game," said Michigan State Coach Gus Ganakas after dropping an 85-72 decision to the Fighting Irish. "As the second half wore on, we became more disorganized and they got stronger through organization."

The "organization" to which Ganakas referred was Notre Dame's tough zone defense. It no doubt looked like the Twilight Zone to Michigan

State's lost Spartans.

"Our zone at the end of the game won it for us," said Notre Dame Coach Dick "Digger" Phelps. "When we started to stall with about three minutes to play, we were up by six points. And after that, we just pulled away."

In other games Wednesday night, No. 3 Long Beach State walloped San Diego State 97-76; 12th-ranked Providence defeated St. Joseph's, Pa., 81-75 and No. 17 San Francisco beat Santa Clara 78-69.

Michigan State had a 35-34 lead over Notre Dame at the half, but buckled under a second-half assault led by the Fighting Irish's Gary Novak. He scored 18 of his 24 points in the last stanza.

Cyclists See Country On Trip For Charity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When there's nothing between you and the pavement but two thin bicycle tires, you notice things — things like flowers, animals and beer cans.

And when you pedal those thin tires 6,300 miles up, down and across the United States, you collect memories. You remember the 65-year-old cyclist in Louisville, Ky., who weekly pedals the 100 miles to Cincinnati and back. And the motorist who pulls alongside you on a steep stretch of Rocky Mountain road just to tell you how fast you're coasting.

And the kids at every town who beg to join you.

Four cyclists had these experiences as they spent the last 2½ months riding across the United States for St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

Accompanied by a van and a dune buggy, the four rode 15-mile shifts from Washington, D.C. to Los Angeles, stopping in 60 cities along the way to symbolically collect money raised for the hospital by local groups.

The trip was sponsored by Epsilon Sigma Alpha, a 33,000-member international women's service organization. The cross-country ride was made to publicize the project.

Taking part in the ride were Alain Pinto and Coleen Davis, both 17, of Fairfax, Va.; Ruben Leon, 20, of Phoenix, Ariz.; and Larry Keith, 29, of St. Louis. A young couple, Mark and Cheri Estes of Ottawa, Kan., directed the trip and took turns on the bike.

St. Jude's exists on contributions. The four cyclists collected $250,000 for the hospital, from local fund drives, presenting a check for that amount to the hospital's founder, actor Danny Thomas, when they arrived in Los Angeles.

They slept in the van, ate on $6 a day and suffered through rain, heat, wind and injuries. But the trip had its rewards.

Strangers stopped them in the streets to give them money.

"Nobody else stops and looks at flowers, but we did," said Leon.

And there was plenty of time to think.

"Once you get your muscles toned, they do the pedaling," Pinto said. If you can get your mind to wander, it does wonders."

$95 Million Office Building Falling Apart; No Solution

BOSTON (AP) — Plywood patches cover sections of New England's tallest building. When the wind blows hard, some of the glass panels of the skyscraper's exterior walls crack and fall, shattering on the streets below.

After spending $95 million and waiting through four years of construction, the owner, John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., cannot move in.

The firm's new corporate headquarters — a 60-story, mirror-like high-rise angled into a corner of Boston's Copley Square — is too dangerous to walk near when stiff winds gust in off the harbor.

Engineers don't know why the glass breaks or how to stop it.

The insurance company wanted to move in at the end of February but now will have to wait six months or more while engineers try to find a way to keep the glass from falling.

Solutions range from changing the window gaskets to replacing the glass that covers 90 per cent of the building — the latter a job that could cost up to $8 million. The 16 acres of exterior walls are covered by 10,348 huge glass panes.

At last count, 340 of the panes had been broken. Officials are not sure how many were popped by the wind and how many were smashed by falling shards of glass. The company says up to 660 others have been nicked or scratched and most will have to be replaced.

When winds at the top of the tower hit 45 miles an hour, police block off streets around the building to protect pedestrians from flying glass. This happens about twice a month. And when the winds reach 50 m.p.h., the panes begin to crack and smash.

On Jan. 20, winds to 75 m.p.h. smashed 15 to 20 of the $750 panes, and flying glass broke another 40 to 50. Hundreds of others were scratched.

Thus far, there have been no reported injuries.

Housing Subsidy Plan Continues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A $75 million experimental housing allowance subsidy program will not be affected by the federal moratorium on housing projects, according to Columbus developer and businessman, George Deffet.

Deffet said he received word from HUD on the project's fate Wednesday. He said he was told of the decision not to scrap the program in a letter from Theodore Britton, Jr., acting assistant secretary for research and technology.

Certain low income families would be given direct rent subsidies under the plan. They would find their own housing with the money.

Opinions Collected On Need Of Cities

NEW YORK (AP) — A thousand of the nation's legislators, educators, businessmen and government officials soon will be asked "Is there a need for central cities in America's future?"

It is part of an attempt "to contribute a permanent record of today's thoughts on today's issues," according to John Gallup, president of the Cotton Fiber Paper Council Inc. Responses to that question will be printed as "Thoughts of Man—1973," the first of a series, sponsored by the council.

President Visits Alice Longworth

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Alice Longworth Roosevelt, daughter of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, five days before her 89th birthday.

The President and Mrs. Nixon spent more than 90 minutes sipping tea and munching cookies Wednesday at Mrs. Longworth's townhouse on Embassy Row.

The President said Mrs. Longworth couldn't attend his inauguration last month — the first one the presidential daughter said she had missed since 1900 — because "she had the flu." He added that she had accepted an invitation to attend a state dinner on March 1 for Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir.

EDINBURGH (AP) — When it comes to playing chess, the computer is no better than a modest amateur, says a university expert. Prof. Donald Michie of Edinburgh University suggests "the task of producing a good computer chess player is far more difficult than some early optimists supposed."

Housing Subsidy Plan Continues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A $75 million experimental housing allowance subsidy program will not be affected by the federal moratorium on housing projects, according to Columbus developer and businessman, George Deffet.

Deffet said he received word from HUD on the project's fate Wednesday. He said he was told of the decision not to scrap the program in a letter from Theodore Britton, Jr., acting assistant secretary for research and technology.

Certain low income families would be given direct rent subsidies under the plan. They would find their own housing with the money.

Opinions Collected On Need Of Cities

NEW YORK (AP) — A thousand of the nation's legislators, educators, businessmen and government officials soon will be asked "Is there a need for central cities in America's future?"

It is part of an attempt "to contribute a permanent record of today's thoughts on today's issues," according to John Gallup, president of the Cotton Fiber Paper Council Inc. Responses to that question will be printed as "Thoughts of Man—1973," the first of a series, sponsored by the council.

President Visits Alice Longworth

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Alice Longworth Roosevelt, daughter of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, five days before her 89th birthday.

The President and Mrs. Nixon spent more than 90 minutes sipping tea and munching cookies Wednesday at Mrs. Longworth's townhouse on Embassy Row.

The President said Mrs. Longworth couldn't attend his inauguration last month — the first one the presidential daughter said she had missed since 1900 — because "she had the flu." He added that she had accepted an invitation to attend a state dinner on March 1 for Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir.

Rule On Disbarment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Atty. Gen. William Brown has issued a legal opinion which states that a disbarred attorney cannot hold the position of attorney examiner for the Board of Tax Appeals.

Computers Can't Play Chess

EDINBURGH (AP) — When it comes to playing chess, the computer is no better than a modest amateur, says a university expert. Prof. Donald Michie of Edinburgh University suggests "the task of producing a good computer chess player is far more difficult than some early optimists supposed."

Writing in New Scientist magazine, Michie said big changes are needed in machine intelligence before computers can achieve the status of chess grand masters.

Cyclists See Country On Trip For Charity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When there's nothing between you and the pavement but two thin bicycle tires, you notice things — things like flowers, animals and beer cans.

And when you pedal those thin tires 6,300 miles up, down and across the United States, you collect memories.

You remember the 65-year-old cyclist in Louisville, Ky., who weekly pedals the 100 miles to Cincinnati and back. And the motorist who pulls alongside you on a steep stretch of Rocky Mountain road just to tell you how fast you're coasting.

And the kids at every town who beg to join you.

Four cyclists had these experiences as they spent the last 2½ months riding across the United States for St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. Accompanied by a van and a dune buggy, the four rode 15-mile shifts from Washington, D.C. to Los Angeles, stopping in 60 cities along the way to symbolically collect money raised for the hospital by local groups.

The trip was sponsored by Epsilon Sigma Alpha, a 33,000-member international women's service organization. The cross-country ride was made to publicize the project.

Taking part in the ride were Alain Pinto and Coleen Davis, both 17, of Fairfax, Va.; Ruben Leon, 20, of Phoenix, Ariz.; and Larry Keith, 29, of St. Louis. A young couple, Mark and Cheri Estes of Ottawa, Kan., directed the trip and took turns on the bike.

St. Jude's exists on contributions. The four cyclists collected $250,000 for the hospital, from local fund drives, presenting a check for that amount to the hospital's founder, actor Danny Thomas, when they arrived in Los Angeles.

They slept in the van, ate on $6 a day and suffered through rain, heat, wind and injuries. But the trip had its rewards.

Strangers stopped them in the streets to give them money.

"Nobody else stops and looks at flowers, but we did," said Leon. And there was plenty of time to think.

Uncle, Nephew Spark Cleveland Tech

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Playing guard for defending Ohio Class AAA tournament basketball champion Cleveland East Tech is strictly a family affair.

Uncle Lawrence Bolden, a three-year regular for the Scarabs, starts as one guard. His nephew, Tony Bolden, opens as the other.

"Our players like to kid them about it," chuckles East Tech Coach John Chavers. "Tony's actually months older than his uncle."

Chavers, however, knows the value of the family duo that has the Scarabs riding in second place this week in The Associated Press Class AAA poll.

"They make our team go," he admits. "Having guards like the Boldens makes it easy for me as a coach. It's just a pleasure to sit back and watch them."

Lawrence, a multi-talented 6-footer, leads the Cleveland East Senate in scoring with 26 points a game. Tony, 5-7, is No. 2 in the race with 17 points per contest.

"We played against each other in junior high school. We're glad we're together now," said Lawrence. Both are seniors.

recent weeks. First he scored 44 points and then hit 47 Saturday against Parma Saturday.

Brothers will be on opposite sides when DeVilbiss tries to clinch the Toledo Red Division title Friday against St. Francis. Chris Celusta, a 6-foot senior, starts for St. Francis. His sophomore brother John is a sub for DeVilbiss.

Springfield South (13-1) has matched its best-ever start in 1932-33, notching a pair of victories within 20 hours. The Wildcats beat Cincinnati Courter Tech
Friday night and Vandalia Butler
Saturday afternoon.

Bob McClary of McDonald can pick up his 250th coaching victory against Crestview Friday. McClary has a 249-139 career mark. Other recent Trumbull County mentors who hit the 250-victory total were Pete Prokop of Youngstown Liberty, Ray Sweeney of Champion and Joe Bassett of Niles.

The Federal League title probably will be decided when 15-0 Canton South and 12-2 Navarre Fairless are rematched at Fairless Feb. 17. South won the first test at home this season.

Steubenville Catholic has won that city's basketball title for the first time in the 30-year-old series with Steubenville Big Red. Catholic won 57-45 last week for a two-game sweep.

Great Silver Dollar Sale
Proves Bust To Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember those uncirculated Carson City silver dollars the federal government was trying to peddle as collectors' items?
Most of them are still uncirculated.

The "Great Silver Dollar Sale" really wasn't.

Only 700,000 cartwheels were sold.
That leaves about 1.6 million still on the auction block.

So to get rid of the unsold silver dollars, the General Services Administration, which is handling the sale, will reopen bids for 90 days, beginning Feb. 15.

The rules will be the same: A minimum bid of $30 on each 1882, 1883 or 1884 silver dollar— one coin per customer from each of those years. If a bidder got one in the previous bidding, he is ineligible for more coins in the year he has.

Despite the lack of bidders, Richard
Q. Vawter, GSA public information director, said the Great Silver Dollar

League scoring mark. Dals Creager set three records himself in that one with 43 points for school and league standards and 16 baskets for another league mark.

Mike Cobb, Youngstown North's 6-foot-5, 225-pound all-city football end, prefers basketball as his college sport.
Cobb is no slouch on the court either.
He had 26 points, 26 rebounds and 12 blocked shots against Youngstown Wilson.

Hamilton Taft's top scorer, Jerry Mathews, managed just two free throws in the school's 103-58 romp over Wilmington last week.

Brian Grevey, 6-3 sophomore brother of former all-stater Kevin Grevey, pumped in 17 points against Wilmington. Kevin now is a sophomore starter for the University of Kentucky.

Carroll, which has all five of its victories at home, scored 27 points in the last quarter last week and still lost on its floor. Lancaster Fisher bombed in 32 points to cart away an 87-84 decision.

Jim Goode, a 6-1 Waynesville forward, has hit 35 straight foul shots, including 11 in a row last week. Carroll Hawhee, Waverly's 27-year coaching veteran, now has 401 career victories after a pair last week.

Randy Foster, Newark's 6-8 senior center, has 1,008 career points. If Chillicothe beats the Wildcats Friday, the Cavaliers will have their first Central Ohio League crown in 12 years.

Genoa, 15-0, has established a school mark for victories in one season. The old record was 14-3 in 1965. Genoa also set another standard with 101 points against Otsego Friday.

Sale was not a bust. "We were very happy about it," he said. "We have 700,000 people who have coins and we think these people are going to be salesmen for us."

When the auction was announced, officials said they expected the average bid would be around $40 a coin. But since the coins were not sold out, each went for $30.

Vawter said one person bid $1,000 for each of the three coins. He got back

But what may have taken the edge off the sale were complaints from coin dealers of "governmental hucksterism." Many dealers and coin magazines claimed a flood of Carson City silver dollars would devalue the coins as investments.

The dollars from the Comstock silver lode in Nevada were salted away and forgotten for over 60 years in the musty cellar of the Treasury Building.
A GSA audit in 1964 led to the discovery of the money.

Charlie's car can be winterized, but can Charlie?

There are a lot of small things to help your car's driving performance this winter. Snow tires. Rain tires. Anti-freeze. Things like that.

There are also a lot of small things to improve your driving performance this winter. Small things like being extra alert, being extra aware of driving conditions, and being aware of how best to deal with those conditions. Small things like remembering to maintain constant speed when driving across a patch of ice. Pumping the brakes evenly when you want to stop on a wet or icy road. Remembering to give yourself extra stopping distance on any slippery surface.

Your new car dealer hopes you'll familiarize yourself with all the little ways you can safely cope with hazardous winter driving conditions. Winter is no time to take risks. There are no special winter additives to keep you going. Don't treat winter lightly. We want you to enjoy the spring.

Uncle, Nephew Spark Cleveland Tech

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Playing guard for defending Ohio Class AAA tournament basketball champion Cleveland East Tech is strictly a family affair.Uncle Lawrence Bolden, a three-year regular for the Scarabs, starts as one guard. His nephew, Tony Bolden, opens as the other."Our players like to kid them about it," chuckles East Tech Coach John Chavers. "Tony's actually months older than his uncle."Chavers, however, knows the value of the family duo that has the Scarabs riding in second place this week in The Associated Press Class AAA poll.

"They make our team go," he admits. "Having guards like the Boldens makes it easy for me as a coach. It's just a pleasure to sit back and watch them."Lawrence, a multi-talented 6-footer, leads the Cleveland East Senate in scoring with 26 points a game. Tony, 5-7, is No. 2 in the race with 17 points per contest."We played against each other in junior high school. We're glad we're together now," said Lawrence. Both are seniors.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rich Little gained a measure of fame by doing uncannily accurate vocal impressions of such folk as John Wayne, President Nixon and Ed Sullivan. It's caused him a few problems.

One involves little people, usually between the ages of nine and 10. They stomp up to him and insist on doing their impressions. Another problem occurs when he speaks in his own voice.

He keeps getting asked, "Who are you doing now?" Little, in town to do a voice or two on ABC's Jack Paar show, talked about the performing life and related matters during a hurried dinner at a big hotel here.

"I'm like the piano player," he mildly grouched. "Wherever I go, people are always wanting me to get up and perform, even on the street."

"It's just lately that when I'm on the road that a lot of kids who are studying impressions come into the dressing room and go through their routines."

"There was a 10-year-old in Oklahoma I remember well. He came in and opened with Ronald Colman. Then he went into his Ed Sullivan—eight minutes of introductions—and then went into Walter Pidgeon, another one of his favorites."

How does Little deal with these verbal urchins? "I never criticize them," he said. "They're too young for that. I picture myself at their age and I used to do what they do, too."

Little, a regular on ABC's

"Julie Andrews Show" and a fair actor and singer when he isn't doing voices, was born in Ottawa, Canada. He got into show business because of his classmates in school — they cheered his impressions of their teachers.

His first engagement was at a club in a Quebec mining town. The job paid $15 and the patrons paid no attention.

"Not only did they not react, but they didn't speak English," he said. "It's a wonder I didn't get into aluminum siding right then."

As the years went on, his fame grew and so did the voices in his repertoire — he now can do about 125. Singer Mel Torme got him his first big break in U.S. television in 1964.

But his real start in America began with his first engagement at a night club in St. Petersburg, Fla. He warmed up the audience for the headliner, Joan Fairfax and Her All-Girl Orchestra.

He admits to being a basket case when he first went on. He also recalled doing Ronald Colman and Walter Pidgeon imitations, but other details were hazy? What happened afterwards?

"Nothing too much," Little said. "I went into my room and cried and worked on my Walter Pidgeon."

Letters We Luv

I read an article about compound interest which said, "The interest paid on your deposit, added to your account will, like your deposit, earn interest. It is an interest-on-interest as well as an interest-on-deposit process. (That's where I look interest)"

You won't lose interest at First National Bank. We pay a high 4½ per cent interest compounded quarterly on passbook savings. So when you think of savings — think FIRST!
